Ohio Flood Damage Mounts

Big Atomic Explosion Sends Testers Running For Cover

Flash Seen In 12 States And Felt 360 Miles Away

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 7 (AP)—The biggest blast of the new atomic test series flashed forks of light visible in a dozen states today, caused an earth rumble 360 miles away, and sent scientists and soldiers scurrying for safety from the Nevada test site.

The predawn flash of a nuclear device believed to be at least 1½ times the strength of the standard A-bomb was seen in the Black Hills of South Dakota, more than 800 airline miles northeast, south of the border in Mexico, and in all 11 Western states. The fireball lasted 20 seconds.

The shock caused a minor earthquake scare in Salt Lake City. One man in Murray, a Salt Lake City suburb, reported the concrete on his front porch cracked. Windows and plates rattled sharply in the Utah city a half hour after the explosion, which came at 5:30 a.m., 20 minutes before dawn.

Wind Shifts Suddenly

But the only radiation threat from the big shot—which had been nicknamed operation Jinx—came to the testers themselves.

A sudden wind shift forced more than 100 Atomic Energy Commission scientists and 575 Army and Marine personnel to evacuate Yucca Flat 10 minutes after the detonation. It was predicted there might be a dangerous radioactive fallout from the lower part, or stem, of the atomic cloud near the control point.

This, however, failed to happen immediately. Six hours after the blast there was no report of seriously high radiation anywhere, on site or off.

Maneuvers Canceled

Military maneuvers for the soldiers and Marines were canceled. They had taken the impact of the blast well-protected in six-foot trenches 5,500 yards away from ground zero—the 500-foot tower from which the device was exploded. No casualties were reported.

It was the highest tower shot ever held here; 300 feet was the previous high. That and the clear weather accounted for the amazing distances the flash was seen.

Speculation on the device itself centered on the possibility it was a new atomic trigger for the hydrogen bomb.

Flood Turns Street Into Canal

This street in the Eastern Kentucky border city of Catlettsburg, Ky., was turned into a canal yesterday as the flooding Ohio and Big Sandy Rivers hit from two sides of the unwalled community of 5,000. Truck bearing unidentified men was used in evacuating drug store goods when it was stalled by rising water, which is two to five feet deep.

Super-Flattops "Indispensable," Navy Chief Says

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Thomas told Congress today that mighty supercarriers are "indispensable" to modern fleets in this era of nuclear warfare.

He disputed critics' claims that the big flattops are too vulnerable to attack.

Citing the carriers' role in Korea and their "fringe war" assignments, Thomas said the recent evacuation of the Nationalist Chinese stronghold on the Tachen Islands proved the value of "a potent offensive Navy, built around our carrier forces."

Deterrent To General War

"I am confident," he told the House Armed Services Committee, "that the continued presence of our naval task forces in the Formosa area is an effective brake and a great deterrent to the outbreak of general war, giving us time to work diligently for a real peace in the Far East."

Thomas pictured the Navy of the future as one built around the striking power of giant carriers and consisting of widely dispersed fleets protected by screens of guided missiles.

The new missile weapons, he said, "promise to revolutionize navies as much as did the discovery of gunpowder."

Defense Against Planes

Thomas said the Navy is "just now crossing the threshhold" in that field but he characterized the guided missile as a potent defense for surface ships against planes carrying atomic bombs. He said that with proper ship dispersal, a screen of guided missiles coupled with conventional air defenses would make it likely that "even a mass destruction weapon could neutralize but a small part of the force."

The Navy secretary went before the committee with other top officials to discuss the Navy's proposed $1,300,000,000 shipbuilding program for the year ending in mid-1956.

Woman Indicted For Giving FCC False Testimony

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Marie Natvig, who set off a sensation in a Federal Communications Commission hearing by denouncing her own testimony, was indicted today on nine charges of lying under oath.

The grand jury made its count No. 1 that she knowingly swore to a lie when she testified that an FCC lawyer, Walter J. Powell, coerced her into giving false testimony against Edward Lamb.

Her original testimony was that she had known Lamb as a Communist. She later repudiated it, saying "I did not wilfully give false testimony. I was coerced into doing it."

Lamb is an editor and publisher whose application for a renewal of his television station license at Erie, Pa., was the subject of the hearing. Lamb has denied all of Mrs. Natvig's various statements about him and has filed a motion to throw out the whole proceedings. Arguments will be heard March 16.

The perjury indictment did not go into whether she lied when she accused Lamb, but was confined to statements she made in her testimony about coercion and to alleged falsehoods in her sworn account of talks with FCC attorneys and an FBI agent.

Mrs. Natvig, a three-times-married divorcee from Miami Beach, was one of the most unusual witnesses the FCC has ever had. Hearing Examiner Herbert Sharfman recessed the proceedings Feb. 24, saying she was an incredible witness.

On the witness stand, the 51-year-old Mrs. Natvig often appeared nervous. She had a tendency to talk rapidly at times, replying quickly to questions and going off in long discourses when permitted.

After today's indictment, U.S. District Judge Charles F. McLaughlin ordered a bench warrant for her arrest. He acted at the request of J. Frank Cunningham, a Justice Department attorney who said he did not know where she was.

Albania Scorns American Food

MUNICH, Germany, March 7 (AP)—Communist Albania rejected today President Eisenhower's offer of American food. The tiny Soviet satellite angrily accused the United States of slander, intervention and attempting to overthrow the Albanian regime.

The Albanian government news agency ATA in a broadcast monitored by Radio Free Europe, said it was authorized to declare that, "The so-called aid offered by the American government is unacceptable to the Albanian people who with contempt and disgust reject this foreign intervention into their own affairs."

The news agency ticked off a list of accusations against President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and the U.S. government. It said:

"The Albanian people know well that they cannot expect any aid from the American imperialists—their sworn enemies. The American imperialists render their aid to countries which they want to oppress but their latest maneuver, like all their previous maneuvers against the Albanian Peoples Republic, is doomed to failure."

Judge Refuses To Take Son From Blind And Deaf Couple

AKRON, Ohio, March 7 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hathaway can neither see nor hear, but that's no reason for the Welfare Department to take their infant son from them, a Juvenile Court judge ruled today.

The community must help the Hathaways care for their 2-weeks-old child in their own home in nearby Stow, said Judge Russell Thomas.

"This is only the beginning," said the judge, who reached his decision after a two-hour closed hearing. "Not one of us can drop the Hathaway case at this point and say 'Let the other fellow do it.' We must work out a community plan."

Welfare Director Leo Mulhearn, fearful of an emergency which the handicapped parents couldn't handle, had asked for today's hearing to "determine what is best for the child."

A friend spelled out the judge's decision on the 53-year-old father's hand. Hathaway asked to be led to the judge and shook the judge's hand. Then he embraced his 32-year-old wife.

"I'll need a diaper service," she said.

"You'll get it," said Mulhearn, who also pledged the help of the visiting nurse's service and aid from the dependent children's fund.

Mrs. Hathaway, who lost her sight and hearing after an illness when she was 15, had said her child is "the only thing I ever had of my own in my whole life."

Hathaway had been deaf for years when he lost his eyesight in 1947.

Their child, Clarence, is healthy and has normal sight and hearing.

Matsu Islands Are Bolstered By Nationalists

Chiang Officers Say Outpost Definitely Will Be Defended

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 7 (AP)—The Matsu Islands 100 miles northwest of Formosa will be defended and are steadily being reinforced, junior Nationalist officers declared today.

Apparently this meant with or without U.S. support. The United States has not committed itself publicly to defend the islands 20 miles off the Red mainland.

The officers told foreign correspondents that strong fortifications are being thrown up in the Matsus. The islands are being laced by a system of military roads.

Will Exceed Tachen Strength

The officers said the Matsus will be built up to greater strength than the Tachen Islands, which had a garrison of more than 11,000 men before they were abandoned. The Matsu garrison has been estimated at 5,000.

The junior officers, who channel news to the press, took pains to impart confidence that the islands will not be abandoned. There has been much speculation here that the Matsus would be yielded.

One newspaper quoted the Defense Ministry as saying the islands "will not be abandoned now or in the future without a bitter fight."

Count On U. S. Help

The junior officers asserted the United States had proved a generous ally who understands the military and psychological importance of not yielding the Matsus or Quemoy, across Formosa Strait.

Thus the Nationalists seemed to have convinced themselves, at least, that U.S. help is forthcoming in a defense of the islands. The United States, however, has given the impression this might be the case only if the attack on the offshore islands was part of a drive toward Formosa.

Market Probers Told Substantial Drop Is Possible

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Two Western stock market presidents told the Senate Banking Committee today there is no guarantee that the present market boom will go on forever.

"I have no crystal ball," said James E. Day of Chicago, president of the Midwest Stock Exchange. "I do believe in the future progress of business, but I want to make it quite clear the stock market can go down—and substantially."

And Ronald E. Kahler, president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, said he thought that when stock earnings fall to the current level of bond yields, people "will stop buying stocks and buy bonds."

Neither Day nor Kaehler, however, expressed any fears about the state of the market. Both said investors and brokers are doing "very well."

The two men were called as part of what the committee chairman, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), has described as a "friendly study" of stock market conditions. Previous witnesses spoke glowingly of the future of the market.

Fulbright told reporters after today's session ended that he would call commentator Walter Winchell in for questioning after the scheduled end of the current phase of hearings March 23, at a date to be set later.

Winchell's name figured in previous testimony when it was said stock tips he had passed out over the air had sent buyers pouring into the market. He has asked for a chance to be heard.

Enemy Raid Warning Signals Simplified

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The Federal Civil Defense Administration announced tonight that new simplified action signals will be used on public warning devices in event of enemy attack.

The new system, effective at once, will supersede previous warning instructions.

The new signals are:

1. Alert signal—a steady blast of three to five minutes on warning devices.

2. Take cover signal—a wailing tone or a series of short blasts of three minutes duration.

The FCDA said the new signals were agreed upon by the United States and Canada.

Dulles Will Report On Results Of Tour

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles stayed late at his office today writing the report to the people he will make tomorrow night on the results of his defense-tightening visit to the Far East.

The secretary, after winding up his formal report to President Eisenhower, passed up afternoon appointments so he could devote the rest of the day to writing his half-hour talk.

Officer Acquitted Of Collaboration

Long Trial Ends As Nugent Freed

FT. SILL, Okla., March 7 (AP)—A nine-colonel court-martial board, after deliberating two hours and 15 minutes, today acquitted Col. Ambrose H. Nugent on all specifications and charges accusing him of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner in the Korean War.

The dramatic climax came after the longest military trial in history, which had started its seventh week.

More than a million words of testimony and 47 witnesses were heard.

Nugent, a career artilleryman from Merrill, Wis., had maintained confidence throughout the lengthy hearing although he once broke down and wept on the stand as he told of hardships he endured in Korea.

Only a handful of spectators was in the courtroom when the court marched in after announcing they were ready to give the verdict.

Four other repatriated American POWs have been tried on collaboration charges and all were convicted.

Nugent could have received up to life imprisonment if he had been convicted.

The court-martial completed final arguments at the start of its seventh week today.

Lt. Col. Donald L. Manes of Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., the law officer, took an hour after closing arguments to instruct the colonels, seven of whom are veterans of the Korean War.

Nugent was charged with nine counts of collaboration, including making propaganda speeches, forming phony peace committees, signing and circulating documents detrimental to his country, offering aid to the enemy and foiling escape plans.

He based his case on contention he acted in behalf of the Reds under duress and by orders of his superior officers at POW camp No. 12 near Pyongyang.

Taylor To Take U. S. Far East, U. N. Command

TOKYO, Tuesday, March 8 (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today was appointed U.S. Far East commander and head of the United Nations Command, effective April 1.

A joint announcement in Tokyo and Washington said the commander of all ground forces in Japan, South Korea and Okinawa was replacing Gen. John E. Hull, who heads for home and retirement.

The announcement said Lt. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, deputy chief of staff for plans and research, will succeed Taylor, whose command includes the U.S. 8th Army in Korea.

Succeeding Lemnitzer will be Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, now assistant chief of staff for operations.

The announcement of Taylor's appointment was not unexpected since he has gradually been given an increase in responsibilities. However, there had been speculation that a Navy or Air Force man might get the top command in the Far East.

Attlee Calls For Talks On Hydrogen Bomb

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Moderate leaders of Britain's feuding Labor party issued a surprise call tonight for immediate Big Three talks on the hydrogen bomb and disarmament.

The call came in an official motion put down for debate in the House of Commons. Observers said Prime Minister Churchill presumably will treat the motion as a censure move and order it debated next week.

The motion was signed by party leader Clement Attlee, deputy leader Herbert Morrison and other members of Labor's "shadow Cabinet"—the group that would form the government if Labor came back to power any time soon.

Mrs. FDR Begins Tour

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left by plane today for a 25-day visit to England, France, Italy and Israel.

Grace Kelly Draws Studio Suspension

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 (AP)—MGM studio said today it has suspended actress Grace Kelly, nominee for a Motion Picture Academy award, following her "refusal" to report for a movie role.

A spokesman said the suspension will continue until she reports.

Earlier the New York World-Telegram & Sun said Miss Kelly ignored two calls from MGM to report to the studio for "Jeremy Rodock" and was notified by wire of her suspension. She was to co-star in the film with Spencer Tracy.

"I'm terribly upset about it," Miss Kelly was quoted by the paper.

"I'm not trying to be difficult or temperamental. I just don't feel I'm right for the part in 'Jeremy Rodock.' My agent has told that to the studio, but they say I have to make the picture anyway."

Matusow's Publisher Clams Up At Probe

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Albert E. Kahn, New York book publisher, today "proudly" invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to tell senators whether he was a Communist.

Kahn, 42, with Angus E. Cameron, is publishing "False Witness," a book in which Harvey Matusow says he lied when he testified before congressional committees and in the courts against persons he alleged to be Communists.

Society Of Remagen Bridge Established By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The Society of the Remagen Bridge came into being at the White House today.

It was established by President Eisenhower on the 10th anniversary of one of the most dramatic Allied coups of World War II.

And it brought together, for the first time since that memorable action, 14 key figures in what Eisenhower called "one of those bright opportunities of war."

That was the seizure, by the U.S. 1st Army's 9th Armored Division, of a bridge across the Rhine River at Remagen, Germany.

Capture of the bridge, minutes ahead of German plans to destroy it, gave the Allies their first hold on the Rhine's eastern banks weeks ahead of the military plan.

Eisenhower told the group, at a White House ceremony, that he had created the Remagen Bridge Society in recognition of a feat which "typifies the dash, ingenuity and readiness to seize opportunity which characterizes the American soldier."

Later, at the Pentagon, Secretary of the Army Stevens told the men—headed by retired Lt. Gen. John W. Leonard, former 9th Division commander—that "no one can estimate the saving in human lives and the speeding of peace your valorous exploits achieved."

With Leonard were Col. Leonard W. Engeman of Camp Kilmer, N.J., commander of the 14th Tank Battalion which spearheaded the crossing, Emmet J. Burrows, Jersey City, N.J., a platoon leader, and 11 surviving members of the first unit to cross the bridge.

Also invited, but unable to attend, was Gen. William M. Hoge, now in Spain. Hoge led the 9th Armored Division's Combat Command B.

River Climbs To 'Disaster' Proportions

Near 7-Year Peak; Red Cross Sends 21 Specialists To Area

CINCINNATI, March 7 (AP)—The Ohio River crept tonight toward its highest level in seven years, forcing hundreds of families along its banks to find new shelter.

American Red Cross officials in Columbus, Ohio, said the river has reached "disaster" proportion. Some 1,600 families in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia have suffered damage, Mrs. Helen Evans of the Franklin County (Columbus) chapter reported.

However, in Cincinnati, Col. J. L. Person, the Ohio River engineer, did not view the damage as disasterous.

"There has been a good deal of scattered damage," he said. "But there has been nothing like a catastrophe. The low-lying areas which get wet every few years are in the water now."

Damage Estimated In Millions

He estimated damage at several million dollars but cautioned that an accurate accounting could not be made until reports were filed.

Pomeroy, Ohio, and Catlettsburg Ky., were hit hard, he said.

However, he foresaw no great damage unless there were a lot of rain and none was sighted in the Weather Bureau forecast.

But, he recalled, the river is at about the same level now as it was during the early stages of the 1937 flood when the Ohio rampaged to 80 feet.

The Red Cross has sent 21 disaster specialists from its Eastern Area headquarters to strategic points along the Ohio in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana.

Ten shelter centers were distributing food and clothing to 1,000-1,200 perons.

2,200 Families Affected

At Catlettsburg, 100 families already have been evacuated and another 200 will be moved out if the river goes beyond expected levels.

In Washington, the American Red Cross said it considers the flood of disaster proportions for the purpose of providing shelter, food and clothing to victims.

It said the flood has affected 1,000 families in West Virginia, from 500 to 600 in Kentucky, 500 in Ohio and 200 in Indiana. The Indiana and Kentucky figures are expected to rise as the flood rolls along.

The Weather Bureau in Cincinnati declared tonight it was a "major flood" because more than two-thirds of the length of the Ohio was at least five feet above flood stages.

Yugoslavs Claim Nuclear Energy Materials, Data

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 7 (AP)—President Tito said today Yugoslavia has "ample raw materials" and know-how to produce nuclear energy for peaceful uses. He called for destruction of nuclear weapons and "active coexistence" among countries of the world.

Tito made a 90-minute address at the first session of Parliament this year.

His statement was the first official assertion that this country has discovered within its borders the essential raw material, presumably uranium, for nuclear power. He made no reference to atomic or hydrogen bombs, confining himself to the term "nuclear energy."

It has been no secret the government has constructed an atomic energy plant outside Belgrade for experimental purposes.

Tito scored the use of nuclear energy for military purposes. In addition to demanding the destruction of "all existing nuclear arms," he said efficient international control would be necessary to prevent the "misuse" of nuclear power.

Criticizing big power "monopoly" in the nuclear field, he added:

"The (Yugoslav) people know that the precious raw material exists here and that a realistic prospective exists that this great invention will serve to the welfare of our country."

The perjury indictment did not go into whether she lied when she accused Lamb, but was confined to statements she made in her testimony about coercion and to alleged falsehoods in her sworn account of talks with FCC attorneys and an FBI agent.

Mrs. Natvig, a three-times-married divorcee from Miami Beach, was one of the most unusual witnesses the FCC has ever had. Hearing Examiner Herbert Sharfman recessed the proceedings Feb. 24, saying she was an incredible witness.

On the witness stand, the 51-year-old Mrs. Natvig often appeared nervous. She had a tendency to talk rapidly at times, replying quickly to questions and going off in long discourses when permitted.

After today's indictment, U.S. District Judge Charles F. McLaughlin ordered a bench warrant for her arrest. He acted at the request of J. Frank Cunningham, a Justice Department attorney who said he did not know where she was.

Dulles Will Report On Results Of Tour

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles stayed late at his office today writing the report to the people he will make tomorrow night on the results of his defense-tightening visit to the Far East.

The secretary, after winding up his formal report to President Eisenhower, passed up afternoon appointments so he could devote the rest of the day to writing his half-hour talk.

Matsu Islands Are Bolstered By Nationalists

Chiang Officers Say Outpost Definitely Will Be Defended

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 7 (AP)—The Matsu Islands 100 miles northwest of Formosa will be defended and are steadily being reinforced, junior Nationalist officers declared today.

Apparently this meant with or without U.S. support. The United States has not committed itself publicly to defend the islands 20 miles off the Red mainland.

The officers told foreign correspondents that strong fortifications are being thrown up in the Matsus. The islands are being laced by a system of military roads.

Will Exceed Tachen Strength

The officers said the Matsus will be built up to greater strength than the Tachen Islands, which had a garrison of more than 11,000 men before they were abandoned. The Matsu garrison has been estimated at 5,000.

The junior officers, who channel news to the press, took pains to impart confidence that the islands will not be abandoned. There has been much speculation here that the Matsus would be yielded.

One newspaper quoted the Defense Ministry as saying the islands "will not be abandoned now or in the future without a bitter fight."

Count On U. S. Help

The junior officers asserted the United States had proved a generous ally who understands the military and psychological importance of not yielding the Matsus or Quemoy, across Formosa Strait.

Thus the Nationalists seemed to have convinced themselves, at least, that U.S. help is forthcoming in a defense of the islands. The United States, however, has given the impression this might be the case only if the attack on the offshore islands was part of a drive toward Formosa.

Market Probers Told Substantial Drop Is Possible

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Two Western stock market presidents told the Senate Banking Committee today there is no guarantee that the present market boom will go on forever.

"I have no crystal ball," said James E. Day of Chicago, president of the Midwest Stock Exchange. "I do believe in the future progress of business, but I want to make it quite clear the stock market can go down—and substantially."

And Ronald E. Kahler, president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, said he thought that when stock earnings fall to the current level of bond yields, people "will stop buying stocks and buy bonds."

Neither Day nor Kaehler, however, expressed any fears about the state of the market. Both said investors and brokers are doing "very well."

The two men were called as part of what the committee chairman, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), has described as a "friendly study" of stock market conditions. Previous witnesses spoke glowingly of the future of the market.

Fulbright told reporters after today's session ended that he would call commentator Walter Winchell in for questioning after the scheduled end of the current phase of hearings March 23, at a date to be set later.

Winchell's name figured in previous testimony when it was said stock tips he had passed out over the air had sent buyers pouring into the market. He has asked for a chance to be heard.

Enemy Raid Warning Signals Simplified

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The Federal Civil Defense Administration announced tonight that new simplified action signals will be used on public warning devices in event of enemy attack.

The new system, effective at once, will supersede previous warning instructions.

The new signals are:

1. Alert signal—a steady blast of three to five minutes on warning devices.

2. Take cover signal—a wailing tone or a series of short blasts of three minutes duration.

The FCDA said the new signals were agreed upon by the United States and Canada.

Officer Acquitted Of Collaboration

Long Trial Ends As Nugent Freed

FT. SILL, Okla., March 7 (AP)—A nine-colonel court-martial board, after deliberating two hours and 15 minutes, today acquitted Col. Ambrose H. Nugent on all specifications and charges accusing him of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner in the Korean War.

The dramatic climax came after the longest military trial in history, which had started its seventh week.

More than a million words of testimony and 47 witnesses were heard.

Nugent, a career artilleryman from Merrill, Wis., had maintained confidence throughout the lengthy hearing although he once broke down and wept on the stand as he told of hardships he endured in Korea.

Only a handful of spectators was in the courtroom when the court marched in after announcing they were ready to give the verdict.

Four other repatriated American POWs have been tried on collaboration charges and all were convicted.

Nugent could have received up to life imprisonment if he had been convicted.

The court-martial completed final arguments at the start of its seventh week today.

Lt. Col. Donald L. Manes of Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., the law officer, took an hour after closing arguments to instruct the colonels, seven of whom are veterans of the Korean War.

Nugent was charged with nine counts of collaboration, including making propaganda speeches, forming phony peace committees, signing and circulating documents detrimental to his country, offering aid to the enemy and foiling escape plans.

He based his case on contention he acted in behalf of the Reds under duress and by orders of his superior officers at POW camp No. 12 near Pyongyang.

Taylor To Take U. S. Far East, U. N. Command

TOKYO, Tuesday, March 8 (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today was appointed U.S. Far East commander and head of the United Nations Command, effective April 1.

A joint announcement in Tokyo and Washington said the commander of all ground forces in Japan, South Korea and Okinawa was replacing Gen. John E. Hull, who heads for home and retirement.

The announcement said Lt. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, deputy chief of staff for plans and research, will succeed Taylor, whose command includes the U.S. 8th Army in Korea.

Succeeding Lemnitzer will be Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, now assistant chief of staff for operations.

The announcement of Taylor's appointment was not unexpected since he has gradually been given an increase in responsibilities. However, there had been speculation that a Navy or Air Force man might get the top command in the Far East.

Attlee Calls For Talks On Hydrogen Bomb

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Moderate leaders of Britain's feuding Labor party issued a surprise call tonight for immediate Big Three talks on the hydrogen bomb and disarmament.

The call came in an official motion put down for debate in the House of Commons. Observers said Prime Minister Churchill presumably will treat the motion as a censure move and order it debated next week.

The motion was signed by party leader Clement Attlee, deputy leader Herbert Morrison and other members of Labor's "shadow Cabinet"—the group that would form the government if Labor came back to power any time soon.

Mrs. FDR Begins Tour

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left by plane today for a 25-day visit to England, France, Italy and Israel.

River Climbs To 'Disaster' Proportions

Near 7-Year Peak; Red Cross Sends 21 Specialists To Area

CINCINNATI, March 7 (AP)—The Ohio River crept tonight toward its highest level in seven years, forcing hundreds of families along its banks to find new shelter.

American Red Cross officials in Columbus, Ohio, said the river has reached "disaster" proportion. Some 1,600 families in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia have suffered damage, Mrs. Helen Evans of the Franklin County (Columbus) chapter reported.

However, in Cincinnati, Col. J. L. Person, the Ohio River engineer, did not view the damage as disasterous.

"There has been a good deal of scattered damage," he said. "But there has been nothing like a catastrophe. The low-lying areas which get wet every few years are in the water now."

Damage Estimated In Millions

He estimated damage at several million dollars but cautioned that an accurate accounting could not be made until reports were filed.

Pomeroy, Ohio, and Catlettsburg Ky., were hit hard, he said.

However, he foresaw no great damage unless there were a lot of rain and none was sighted in the Weather Bureau forecast.

But, he recalled, the river is at about the same level now as it was during the early stages of the 1937 flood when the Ohio rampaged to 80 feet.

The Red Cross has sent 21 disaster specialists from its Eastern Area headquarters to strategic points along the Ohio in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana.

Ten shelter centers were distributing food and clothing to 1,000-1,200 perons.

2,200 Families Affected

At Catlettsburg, 100 families already have been evacuated and another 200 will be moved out if the river goes beyond expected levels.

In Washington, the American Red Cross said it considers the flood of disaster proportions for the purpose of providing shelter, food and clothing to victims.

It said the flood has affected 1,000 families in West Virginia, from 500 to 600 in Kentucky, 500 in Ohio and 200 in Indiana. The Indiana and Kentucky figures are expected to rise as the flood rolls along.

The Weather Bureau in Cincinnati declared tonight it was a "major flood" because more than two-thirds of the length of the Ohio was at least five feet above flood stages.

Grace Kelly Draws Studio Suspension

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 (AP)—MGM studio said today it has suspended actress Grace Kelly, nominee for a Motion Picture Academy award, following her "refusal" to report for a movie role.

A spokesman said the suspension will continue until she reports.

Earlier the New York World-Telegram & Sun said Miss Kelly ignored two calls from MGM to report to the studio for "Jeremy Rodock" and was notified by wire of her suspension. She was to co-star in the film with Spencer Tracy.

"I'm terribly upset about it," Miss Kelly was quoted by the paper.

"I'm not trying to be difficult or temperamental. I just don't feel I'm right for the part in 'Jeremy Rodock.' My agent has told that to the studio, but they say I have to make the picture anyway."

Matusow's Publisher Clams Up At Probe

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Albert E. Kahn, New York book publisher, today "proudly" invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to tell senators whether he was a Communist.

Kahn, 42, with Angus E. Cameron, is publishing "False Witness," a book in which Harvey Matusow says he lied when he testified before congressional committees and in the courts against persons he alleged to be Communists.

Society Of Remagen Bridge Established By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—The Society of the Remagen Bridge came into being at the White House today.

It was established by President Eisenhower on the 10th anniversary of one of the most dramatic Allied coups of World War II.

And it brought together, for the first time since that memorable action, 14 key figures in what Eisenhower called "one of those bright opportunities of war."

That was the seizure, by the U.S. 1st Army's 9th Armored Division, of a bridge across the Rhine River at Remagen, Germany.

Capture of the bridge, minutes ahead of German plans to destroy it, gave the Allies their first hold on the Rhine's eastern banks weeks ahead of the military plan.

Eisenhower told the group, at a White House ceremony, that he had created the Remagen Bridge Society in recognition of a feat which "typifies the dash, ingenuity and readiness to seize opportunity which characterizes the American soldier."

Later, at the Pentagon, Secretary of the Army Stevens told the men—headed by retired Lt. Gen. John W. Leonard, former 9th Division commander—that "no one can estimate the saving in human lives and the speeding of peace your valorous exploits achieved."

With Leonard were Col. Leonard W. Engeman of Camp Kilmer, N.J., commander of the 14th Tank Battalion which spearheaded the crossing, Emmet J. Burrows, Jersey City, N.J., a platoon leader, and 11 surviving members of the first unit to cross the bridge.

Also invited, but unable to attend, was Gen. William M. Hoge, now in Spain. Hoge led the 9th Armored Division's Combat Command B.

Yugoslavs Claim Nuclear Energy Materials, Data

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 7 (AP)—President Tito said today Yugoslavia has "ample raw materials" and know-how to produce nuclear energy for peaceful uses. He called for destruction of nuclear weapons and "active coexistence" among countries of the world.

Tito made a 90-minute address at the first session of Parliament this year.

His statement was the first official assertion that this country has discovered within its borders the essential raw material, presumably uranium, for nuclear power. He made no reference to atomic or hydrogen bombs, confining himself to the term "nuclear energy."

It has been no secret the government has constructed an atomic energy plant outside Belgrade for experimental purposes.

Tito scored the use of nuclear energy for military purposes. In addition to demanding the destruction of "all existing nuclear arms," he said efficient international control would be necessary to prevent the "misuse" of nuclear power.

Criticizing big power "monopoly" in the nuclear field, he added:

"The (Yugoslav) people know that the precious raw material exists here and that a realistic prospective exists that this great invention will serve to the welfare of our country."

Tentative Senate Approval Given SRC Probe Move

Doubts Of Final Passage Raised

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP) — Democratic leaders pressing for a probe of the Maryland State Roads Commission scored a narrow victory tonight when the Senate tentatively approved the move.

The vote was 14-13 with five Democrats joining the nine-man Republican membership against the bill.

Doubts of ultimate passage when the measure comes up for final passage were raised when, after the tense roll-call, Sen. North (D-Talbot) indicated he will oppose the measure next time around. He excused himself from voting this time.

The bill—sponsored by Senate President Goldstein (D-Calvert), Majority Leader Turnbull, and Sens. Malkus (D-Dorchester) and Nock (D-Wicomico)—would set up a $50,000 probe of the commission by an eight-member committee of the General Assembly.

The committee, appointed by the presiding officers of the Senate and House, would hire outside consultants and have the power to subpoena witnesses.

Particular attention would be paid to the commission's administration of the 12-year, 568-million-dollar roads program.

In his 1954 campaign for governor, Democrat H. C. Byrd accused the commission appointed by Republican Gov. McKeldin of "waste, extravagance and favoritism."

He was especially critical of a commission contract under which David M. Nichols, a member of the commission until a few months earlier, shared in a contract paying real estate men ¾-million dollars for acquiring rights of way to build the Baltimore harbor tunnel.

The conditions of the contract called for the real estate interests to receive 7½-per cent of the cost of acquisition.

Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) argued against the bill as a waste of money. Like North, he at first passed on the rollcall. But when the tally was announced as 14-12, Kimble rose, announced he would like to vote, and added his weight to the negative, making it 14-13.

Mrs. Nock, Turnbull and Malkus said explanations by roads officials of the 7½-per cent tunnel contract and other factors had aroused a wide range of public suspicion about the commission. A "study," as the bill refers to the probe, would determine whether this suspicion was justified or whether the commission was being wronged.

Recovers 180 Bills Lost In Stiff Wind

LONDON, March 7 (AP) — A. J. Allen lost 180 one-pound bills—$504—in a stiff March wind today—and recovered them all.

He was about to enter a bank in suburban Tooting Broadway when the case in which he was carrying the money broke open. The wind scattered the bills all over the street.

People piled off buses, jumped out of automobiles and ran out of shops to chase the money.

One by one, they walked up to Allen and handed him the recovered bills.

Prosecution Will Name Playboys At Jelke Retrial

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Mickey Jelke was put on trial anew today. But this time there was no sanctuary in sight for the wealthy cafe society playboys who bought the favors of easy loving vice dolls.

"It's unfortunate but the names will come out during the trial," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler of the reportedly prominent men who paid $50 to $100 a night for cash and carry sex.

The names were embargoed at Jelke's first trial two years ago by a court blackout on state testimony. But on appeal, this limitation on the press and public was ruled unconstitutional and a new trial ordered.

First Juror Seated

The first juror seated during the day was Jesse J. Berlin, a short, stocky, well-dressed insurance broker. Picked from a panel of 124 specially selected or "blue ribbon" prospects, he automatically moved into the foreman's seat.

Jelke, now 25, was thinner than at his last court appearance. The heir to oleomargine millions appeared composed, and only a bit tense. He pinched his nose or pulled at the skin of his neck occasionally. He leaned forward intently to follow proceedings, occasionally beating the fist of one hand into the palm of the other noiselessly.

Asks Family To Stay Away

He is accused of augmenting his preinheritance income by inducing young glamor girls into the cafe society vice circuit, then taking part of their earnings. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison on the two counts.

Jelke began his retrial in self-imposed court exile from his immediate family. The defense said he asked his social register mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Teal, and his bride, Sylvia Eder Jelke, to stay away from the courtroom.

Priest Expelled By Soviet Union Welcomed Home

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Russia's only American Roman Catholic priest evicted for an undisclosed reason, arrived home today saying: "God certainly is not dead" in the Marxist Soviet Union.

But the Rev. Georges Bissonnette said it is hard to tell if there is any religious revival under way in Russia. He said "a revival starts first as a conviction and you can't see the results right away."

He added that three more churches recently were opened in Moscow.

The 33-year-old priest of Central Falls, R.I., flew into a warm reception from his family and fellow clergymen of the Assumptionist Order.

Father Bissonnette could only speculate as to why he was expelled by the Soviets.

He said possibly it was in retaliation for the United States' refusing permission for an indefinite stay here of Metropolitan Boris, representative in North and South America of the Russian Orthodox Church, but he was not sure. The Russian church official was permitted only a 60-day visit here.

Father Kills Girl, 19, Following Her Arrest

BOSTON, March 7 (AP)—A 19-year-old girl was found strangled today in her home in the Charlestown section. Police said her father admitted he killed her.

The victim was Margaret Keigney.

Patrolman Francis L. Hegner said he and Patrolman David T. Signori were driving past the home when the father, Thomas F. Keigney, a longshoreman, came running out of the house and signalled the cruiser to stop.

"I beat my daughter and I think I've killed her," Hegner quoted the man as saying.

Police said father and daughter quarreled because the girl was taken into custody by Charlestown police last night as a disorderly person.

Quake, Eruptions Ease Up In Hawaii

PAHOA, Hawaii, March 7 (AP)—A relative calm returned to the stricken eastern tip of Hawaii today after a week of volcanic eruptions, but authorities warned the danger was not yet over.

Rivers of lava which had seared hundreds of acres of lush sugar cane land and forests and raked the edge of the village of Kapoho had all but stopped.

The earth still shook occasionally but nothing like anxious Saturday night when shocks came at the rate of 100 a minute.

Churchill, Former Redcoat, Becomes Son Of Revolution

LONDON, March 7 — Prime Minister Churchill, former redcoat though he is, now is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Col. G. Edward Nichols, representing the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, called at the House of Commons today and formally made Churchill an honorary life member.

Churchill, 80, qualified as a redcoat by fighting in the Sudan in 1899—before the British army switched from red to khaki. He qualifies for the Sons of the Revolution too. Its membership—1,800 strong in New York State—is limited to men whose ancestors served in the Continental Army during the War of Independence. Lt. Rouben Murry—a forebear of Churchill's American mother—served in Col. Charles Burral's Connecticut regiment.

Grandfather Finds Missing Tot's Body

COVINGTON, Va., March 7 (AP)—The grandfather of an 18-month-old girl who had been missing since Saturday stumbled across her body today near the edge of a rain-swollen creek about a half mile from her Alleghany County mountain home.

Cecil Bates found Sandra McDaniel's body wedged against rocks near the foot of a bridge spanning the mud-filled waters of Snake Run, some 25 miles west of Covington.

The child, who wandered from sight Saturday after the stream had burst its banks, apparently fell in and was swept downstream by the current.

County Medical Examiner M. I. Hanna attributed the girl's death to drowning.

Coal Industry's Ills Are Blamed On Oil Imports

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Two witnesses for the coal industry today blamed "excessive" fuel oil imports for the big share of coal mining troubles.

A third witness, for the lead and zinc mining industry, also blamed imports for its troubles.

They testified at the opening of hearings by a Senate Labor subcommittee into the causes of unemployment in the coal, railroad, textile and other industries, including clothespin manufacturing.

Sen. Neely (D-WVa), chairman of the subcommittee, told the witnesses their problem was a "serious one that must be solved." He added that he was not in favor of "letting free traders trade off our prosperity."

The Senate Finance Committee currently is conducting hearings on an administration-backed bill to extend the reciprocal trade agreements program for three years and give President Eisenhower additional authority to lower tariffs.

Neely said the purpose of the unemployment probe is "not to destroy or impair the principle" of the reciprocal trade program.

Walter R. Thurmond, Charleston, W. Va., secretary of the Southern Coal Producers' Assn., said in recent years coal "has had a cruel competitor in residual (fuel) oil imported into this country by a selfish, greedy and irresponsible international oil cartel."

He said coal has declined in production 38 per cent from 1947 to 1954. Between January, 1951, and September, 1954, 153 mines closed completely, he said, 133 because of economic conditions and 20 because they were worked out. The mines had employed 19,129 men, he said.

U. S. Navy Icebreaker Back From Antarctic Expedition

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 7 (AP)—The U.S. Navy icebreaker Atka docked in summery Buenos Aires today after a two-month trail blazing expedition to the antarctic.

Many of her 276 crewmen and civilian technicians—away from civilization since the ship sailed Jan. 7 from Wellington, New Zealand—headed for the city's steak houses as soon as they were granted liberty. They had been without beef three weeks because the supply on board had spoiled.

The Atka will remain in Buenos Aires a week to take on supplies for the trip back to the United States.

Carrying out the first U.S. explorations in the South Polar region in seven years, teams from the Atka visited Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd's Little America and scouted the Atlantic side of antarctica. They discovered several good sites for new bases. Helicopters and weasels — tread-equipped jeeps — were used in the surveys.

The work was in preparation for a wide range of scientific studies in which some 38 nations are expected to take part in 1957-58.

Summarizing the Atka preliminary expedition, the Navy reported:

Teams investigated Little America, the Ross Sea base of four earlier American expeditions. It was found that shifting ice virtually had destroyed its usefulness. The protected Bay of Whales and part of one camp had been wiped out. The others were imperiled.

Some equipment from the 1946-47 naval expedition was salvaged. food supplies were perfectly preserved. A 1934 windmill, found still turning, was dismantled and brought back as a gift for Byrd.

Andrews Field-Based Jet Fighter Missing

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md., March 7 (AP)—Search efforts for a missing Andrews-based jet fighter moved northward late today to area of Long Island Sound, N.Y.

Officials here, meanwhile, identified the pilot as 1st. Lt. Charles F. Agee, 24, whose mother, Thelma, lives at (1048 Garden St.) Charleston, W. Va. Agee, who is married and has one daughter, lives in Washington.

Agee's F86D Sabre Jet left Andrews this morning on what was to have been a routine flight to New Castle County airport near Wilmington, Del.

First Juror Seated

The first juror seated during the day was Jesse J. Berlin, a short, stocky, well-dressed insurance broker. Picked from a panel of 124 specially selected or "blue ribbon" prospects, he automatically moved into the foreman's seat.

Jelke, now 25, was thinner than at his last court appearance. The heir to oleomargine millions appeared composed, and only a bit tense. He pinched his nose or pulled at the skin of his neck occasionally. He leaned forward intently to follow proceedings, occasionally beating the fist of one hand into the palm of the other noiselessly.

Asks Family To Stay Away

He is accused of augmenting his preinheritance income by inducing young glamor girls into the cafe society vice circuit, then taking part of their earnings. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison on the two counts.

Jelke began his retrial in self-imposed court exile from his immediate family. The defense said he asked his social register mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Teal, and his bride, Sylvia Eder Jelke, to stay away from the courtroom.

Priest Expelled By Soviet Union Welcomed Home

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Russia's only American Roman Catholic priest evicted for an undisclosed reason, arrived home today saying: "God certainly is not dead" in the Marxist Soviet Union.

But the Rev. Georges Bissonnette said it is hard to tell if there is any religious revival under way in Russia. He said "a revival starts first as a conviction and you can't see the results right away."

He added that three more churches recently were opened in Moscow.

The 33-year-old priest of Central Falls, R.I., flew into a warm reception from his family and fellow clergymen of the Assumptionist Order.

Father Bissonnette could only speculate as to why he was expelled by the Soviets.

He said possibly it was in retaliation for the United States' refusing permission for an indefinite stay here of Metropolitan Boris, representative in North and South America of the Russian Orthodox Church, but he was not sure. The Russian church official was permitted only a 60-day visit here.

Father Kills Girl, 19, Following Her Arrest

BOSTON, March 7 (AP)—A 19-year-old girl was found strangled today in her home in the Charlestown section. Police said her father admitted he killed her.

The victim was Margaret Keigney.

Patrolman Francis L. Hegner said he and Patrolman David T. Signori were driving past the home when the father, Thomas F. Keigney, a longshoreman, came running out of the house and signalled the cruiser to stop.

"I beat my daughter and I think I've killed her," Hegner quoted the man as saying.

Police said father and daughter quarreled because the girl was taken into custody by Charlestown police last night as a disorderly person.

Quake, Eruptions Ease Up In Hawaii

PAHOA, Hawaii, March 7 (AP)—A relative calm returned to the stricken eastern tip of Hawaii today after a week of volcanic eruptions, but authorities warned the danger was not yet over.

Rivers of lava which had seared hundreds of acres of lush sugar cane land and forests and raked the edge of the village of Kapoho had all but stopped.

The earth still shook occasionally but nothing like anxious Saturday night when shocks came at the rate of 100 a minute.

Churchill, Former Redcoat, Becomes Son Of Revolution

LONDON, March 7 — Prime Minister Churchill, former redcoat though he is, now is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Col. G. Edward Nichols, representing the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, called at the House of Commons today and formally made Churchill an honorary life member.

Churchill, 80, qualified as a redcoat by fighting in the Sudan in 1899—before the British army switched from red to khaki. He qualifies for the Sons of the Revolution too. Its membership—1,800 strong in New York State—is limited to men whose ancestors served in the Continental Army during the War of Independence. Lt. Rouben Murry—a forebear of Churchill's American mother—served in Col. Charles Burral's Connecticut regiment.

Grandfather Finds Missing Tot's Body

COVINGTON, Va., March 7 (AP)—The grandfather of an 18-month-old girl who had been missing since Saturday stumbled across her body today near the edge of a rain-swollen creek about a half mile from her Alleghany County mountain home.

Cecil Bates found Sandra McDaniel's body wedged against rocks near the foot of a bridge spanning the mud-filled waters of Snake Run, some 25 miles west of Covington.

The child, who wandered from sight Saturday after the stream had burst its banks, apparently fell in and was swept downstream by the current.

County Medical Examiner M. I. Hanna attributed the girl's death to drowning.

Coal Industry's Ills Are Blamed On Oil Imports

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Two witnesses for the coal industry today blamed "excessive" fuel oil imports for the big share of coal mining troubles.

A third witness, for the lead and zinc mining industry, also blamed imports for its troubles.

They testified at the opening of hearings by a Senate Labor subcommittee into the causes of unemployment in the coal, railroad, textile and other industries, including clothespin manufacturing.

Sen. Neely (D-WVa), chairman of the subcommittee, told the witnesses their problem was a "serious one that must be solved." He added that he was not in favor of "letting free traders trade off our prosperity."

The Senate Finance Committee currently is conducting hearings on an administration-backed bill to extend the reciprocal trade agreements program for three years and give President Eisenhower additional authority to lower tariffs.

Neely said the purpose of the unemployment probe is "not to destroy or impair the principle" of the reciprocal trade program.

Walter R. Thurmond, Charleston, W. Va., secretary of the Southern Coal Producers' Assn., said in recent years coal "has had a cruel competitor in residual (fuel) oil imported into this country by a selfish, greedy and irresponsible international oil cartel."

He said coal has declined in production 38 per cent from 1947 to 1954. Between January, 1951, and September, 1954, 153 mines closed completely, he said, 133 because of economic conditions and 20 because they were worked out. The mines had employed 19,129 men, he said.

U. S. Navy Icebreaker Back From Antarctic Expedition

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 7 (AP)—The U.S. Navy icebreaker Atka docked in summery Buenos Aires today after a two-month trail blazing expedition to the antarctic.

Many of her 276 crewmen and civilian technicians—away from civilization since the ship sailed Jan. 7 from Wellington, New Zealand—headed for the city's steak houses as soon as they were granted liberty. They had been without beef three weeks because the supply on board had spoiled.

The Atka will remain in Buenos Aires a week to take on supplies for the trip back to the United States.

Carrying out the first U.S. explorations in the South Polar region in seven years, teams from the Atka visited Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd's Little America and scouted the Atlantic side of antarctica. They discovered several good sites for new bases. Helicopters and weasels — tread-equipped jeeps — were used in the surveys.

The work was in preparation for a wide range of scientific studies in which some 38 nations are expected to take part in 1957-58.

Summarizing the Atka preliminary expedition, the Navy reported:

Teams investigated Little America, the Ross Sea base of four earlier American expeditions. It was found that shifting ice virtually had destroyed its usefulness. The protected Bay of Whales and part of one camp had been wiped out. The others were imperiled.

Some equipment from the 1946-47 naval expedition was salvaged. food supplies were perfectly preserved. A 1934 windmill, found still turning, was dismantled and brought back as a gift for Byrd.

70 Young Cerebral Palsy Patients Carried To Safety During Fire At Institution

REISTERSTOWN, March 7 (AP)—Seventy young cerebral palsy patients, none able to walk, were carried to safety in the nick of time today as fire broke out in a private institution near here.

The patients, ranging in age from 3 to 25, were eating lunch in the basement cafeteria when one of them said he smelled smoke.

A nurse sent a porter to investigate. He found dense smoke and flames in the laundry and maintenance room adjoining the cafeteria.

Miss Frances Bontrager, assistant superintendent of nurses, said 50 employes were quickly rounded up and a fire evacuation plan was put into effect.

The patients were carried out the cafeteria door at ground level.

Miss Bontrager said the exit required only two minutes once it was organized.

She said only one of the patients succumbed to panic, and he was quickly calmed. Blankets kept them warm until they could be taken inside the Nurses Home on the grounds for shelter.

Chief Louis Maisell of the Baltimore County Fire Prevention Bureau praised the work of the nurses and staff members. He said the Bureau had instructed them previously in the evacuation operation.

Fire apparatus from six Baltimore County communities responded to three alarms to help fight the blaze in the three-story building.

The fire was confined to the laundry and maintenance room. There was some damage to the dormitory on the floor above. Fire Chief Anthony Orban who directed the effort said the use of fog to extinguish the flames probably cut down on water damage.

Firefighter Clarence H. Ruby of Pikesville was overcome by the dense smoke and was taken to a Baltimore hospital for treatment.

The blaze was discovered about 12:15 p.m. There was no one in the laundry room at the time.

Executive Director Christopher H. Weiner of the institution said the spring vacation period had been set for March 18. He said parents of patients living nearby would be asked to take them home as soon as possible.

Others will be housed in the Nurses Home until fire damage is repaired or arrangements can be made to send them home.

The institution is called The Children's Rehabilitation Institute for Cerebral Palsy.

Sanity Hearing, Baltimore Trial Asked For Yamin

BALTIMORE, March 7 (AP)—Attorneys for Martin J. Yamin moved today to try to get him removed from New York where he is undergoing questioning about a murder.

They applied for a court order to bring him to Baltimore for a sanity hearing and a speedy trial on a charge of conspiracy to rob which has been filed against the former Baltimore police magistrate.

New York detectives have been questioning Yamin about the slaying of Joseph Aronowitz, apparently wiped out in a gang-style killing.

Aronowitz was expected to turn state's witness in the Yamin conspiracy to rob trial.

Judge John T. Tucker today set 3 p.m. Wednesday for a hearing on the plea to bring Yamin to Baltimore. The petition was filed by Fred E. Weisgal, Baltimore lawyer, and Elihu W. Goldin, New York attorney.

It requests the court to order Yamin's return from New York promptly.

Last Saturday, Judge Michael J. Manley refused to sign a similar document, a show-cause order sought by Yamin.

The petition before Judge Tucker states that Yamin is "mentally ill and is in great need of medical care and treatment, and it is to his best interest that the above case be tried immediately without unnecessary delay."

Yamin and John Di Tommaso, also known as Johnny Ditto, are co-defendants in the conspiracy case. They are charged with conspiring to have Aronowitz and Joseph Sampson rob Mrs. Josephine Williams and her husband. Sampson was moved from here to New York Friday as a grand jury witness in the Aronowitz slaying.

Aronowitz was killed by gun fire in Brooklyn last month, a day before he was due to appear here in the Yamin trial.

Americans drank an average of about 17 gallons of beer and other malt brews per person in a year.

Gov. McKeldin Signs Bill Establishing Separate Division Of Industrial Safety

ANNAPOLIS, March 7 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin gave final approval today to establishment of a single Division of Industrial Safety which had been urged by organized labor in Maryland.

The bill was among 34 the governor signed into law. He now has signed 77 passed at this session of the Legislature.

It incorporates safety divisions now operating independently in the Department of Labor and Industry and the Industrial Accident Commission. It also brings the Board of Boiler rules under the Department of Labor and Industry whose commissioners wil be the ruling authority of occupational safety.

A safety advisory board of five members will make recommendations for safety rules to the commissioner who will have power to make industries comply with them.

Among the bills also signed were two which remove truck transportation of milk to Baltimore from jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission.

This was a victory for dairymen who claimed the state regulation forced them to pay higher freight rates than free competition among haulers.

The comptroller also was granted power to regulate the size of beer containers. This law was caused by his desire to prohibit a brewer from distributing beer in a 10-ounce can.

Only three counties, Calvert, Garrett and Howard, remain in the state where women are not allowed to serve on juries after Kent and Carroll were opened to them today. The governor earlier had signed a bill removing St. Mary's from the "men only" counties.

A prohibition on hunting while drunk was approved by the governor, too, although earlier a report from his office had him wary of the ability to enforce such a law.

The new laws also include the attorney general' among officials who are to be sworn in the presence of the governor and prohibits manufacture of explosives within a mile of any town or village in Kent County.

The latter is the aftermath of an explosion in which 11 were killed at Chestertown last year.

Both Sens. Phoebus (R-Somerset) and Del. Machen (D-Prince Georges) kept their promises tonight to put in bills on distribution of motor vehicle taxes and the Welfare Department.

Sen. Phoebus proposed that Baltimore City and the counties each get 25 per cent of the fees instead of the city taking 30.

Man's Body Found Along B&O Tracks

BRUNSWICK, March 7 (AP)—The body of a man believed killed by a train late Sunday night was found early today along the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

State Police identified the victim as Vernon Caly Long, 46, of Brunswick. He was not an employe of the B&O, the railroad said.

Frederick County medical examiner Dr. Robert J. Furie said the man had a fractured skull and his left leg was nearly severed.

The body was found in the Brunswick yard of the railroad. It was first seen by G.J. Ewell, Baltimore, fireman on a B&O train.

Falconry, the ancient method of hunting game with trained falcons, is still practiced by small groups in the Netherlands, England and America.

Frederick County medical examiner Dr. Robert J. Furie said the man had a fractured skull and his left leg was nearly severed.

The body was found in the Brunswick yard of the railroad. It was first seen by G.J. Ewell, Baltimore, fireman on a B&O train.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, March 7 (INS)—Sir Winston Churchill's revelation that he was "completely paralyzed" for part of 1953 could have come as no great surprise to those who covered the Bermuda conference.

The great old man looked at the end of his long and colorful rope when he moved slowly down the steps of his plane, upon arrival. It just did not seem possible that he could carry on a serious confab with a vigorous President and with Premier Laniel.

There was another day at Bermuda when an aide carried a large wicker chair to the edge of the water—at the Mid-Ocean Beach Club—rooted it firmly in the sand, and the great man moved painfully to it. He sat down and for perhaps an hour he rested there, fathoms deep in thought and memory, looking straight out to sea. Looking at him from a respectful distance made one think of the stricken Roosevelt, just before and just after the Yalta trip.

But with Churchill there would appear to be this difference: He somehow rebounds. If he was "completely paralyzed" for part of 1953 he was a vigorous old John A. (for Atomic) Bull the other day in Commons when he carefully and shrewdly outlined Britain's H-bomb policy. Matter of fact, by carefully spacing his sleep, relaxation and work, he got through the tiresome and useless Bermuda conference better than did the much younger Laniel, who was in bed through most of the show.

Churchill always comes back, even a cursory study of his career would indicate. If he had chosen the prize ring, instead of journalism, politics, militarism and statesmanship, he'd more surely have been the first heavyweight champion to regain a lost title.

Peter Donald, moderator of TV's "Masquerade Party" was chatting in the lobby of "21" with Bernard Baruch. Halfway through the chat, Baruch's hearing aid dropped to the floor.

"Oops," said the elder statesman, "wait a minute, I'm off the air."

Two U. S. Weather Bureau scientists, L. Machta and D. L. Harris, in close association with the Atomic Energy Commission, have issued a report on the effect of atomic weapons on weather. Key sentence:

"A . . . careful examination of the data does not support the hypothesis that atomic explosions have changed the weather."

They get into some reasons why the legend has grown. The Hiroshima fires were so great after the bomb dropped that the heat produced numerous showers in the moist air overlying the city. There were showers for half an hour after the underwater test shot at Bikini. The Nevada tests have caused no weather changes whatsoever.

The U. S. Air Force must be the fastest growing business organization in history.

The "Air Force," as such, flew for the first time on March 1, 1910. One month earlier, Lt. Benjamin D. Foulois, for some time the only man in the "Air Force," had been given a budget of $150 with instructions to hie himself to the brothers Wright and learn something about their gol-darn flying contraption.

Quick dissolve to an item in "Planes," official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association of America:

"The United States Air Force, buying more than a million separate items a year, continues to be the biggest business in the world.

"By July, 1956, the Air Force will have bought more than $25,000,000,000 dollars worth of aircraft of all types and related equipment since the outbreak of war in Korea in June, 1950. During the next 18 months period alone, the Air Force will take delivery on approximately $10,000,000,000 worth of supplies and equipment.

"Best example of the tremendous Air Force purchasing program needed to maintain U. S. air supremacy is that USAF, during a recent seven month period, made 524,864 contracts to buy $2,557,598,000 worth of items. These products ranged from tiny screws, costing a fraction of a cent a piece, to giant aircraft costing several million dollars each."

Foreign Non-Red Nations Exceed U. S. Oil Output

TULSA, Okla., March 7 (AP)—For the second time in history, foreign non-Communist countries last December produced more crude oil than United States, The Oil & Gas Journal reported this week.

Domestic production of 6,394,000 barrels daily was exceeded 69,000 barrels per day by the foreign nations which averaged 6,463,000 daily.

A new record of 3,007,000 per day was produced in December by the Middle East, said the Journal which explained Europe's harsh winter and western Europe's growing industry accounted for the Middle East's larger output.

Although Iran has resumed production, it has not caused any curtailment of production in other Middle East countries, the magazine reported. Iran's daily production climbed 28 per cent over November to 187,000.

Canada hiked production to 306,000 barrels daily, compared to 274,000 in November and Venezuela set another new record with a 2,083,300 barrel per day output.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, March 7 (INS)—Sir Winston Churchill's revelation that he was "completely paralyzed" for part of 1953 could have come as no great surprise to those who covered the Bermuda conference.

The great old man looked at the end of his long and colorful rope when he moved slowly down the steps of his plane, upon arrival. It just did not seem possible that he could carry on a serious confab with a vigorous President and with Premier Laniel.

There was another day at Bermuda when an aide carried a large wicker chair to the edge of the water—at the Mid-Ocean Beach Club—rooted it firmly in the sand, and the great man moved painfully to it. He sat down and for perhaps an hour he rested there, fathoms deep in thought and memory, looking straight out to sea. Looking at him from a respectful distance made one think of the stricken Roosevelt, just before and just after the Yalta trip.

But with Churchill there would appear to be this difference: He somehow rebounds. If he was "completely paralyzed" for part of 1953 he was a vigorous old John A. (for Atomic) Bull the other day in Commons when he carefully and shrewdly outlined Britain's H-bomb policy. Matter of fact, by carefully spacing his sleep, relaxation and work, he got through the tiresome and useless Bermuda conference better than did the much younger Laniel, who was in bed through most of the show.

Churchill always comes back, even a cursory study of his career would indicate. If he had chosen the prize ring, instead of journalism, politics, militarism and statesmanship, he'd more surely have been the first heavyweight champion to regain a lost title.

Peter Donald, moderator of TV's "Masquerade Party" was chatting in the lobby of "21" with Bernard Baruch. Halfway through the chat, Baruch's hearing aid dropped to the floor.

"Oops," said the elder statesman, "wait a minute, I'm off the air."

Two U. S. Weather Bureau scientists, L. Machta and D. L. Harris, in close association with the Atomic Energy Commission, have issued a report on the effect of atomic weapons on weather. Key sentence:

"A . . . careful examination of the data does not support the hypothesis that atomic explosions have changed the weather."

They get into some reasons why the legend has grown. The Hiroshima fires were so great after the bomb dropped that the heat produced numerous showers in the moist air overlying the city. There were showers for half an hour after the underwater test shot at Bikini. The Nevada tests have caused no weather changes whatsoever.

The U. S. Air Force must be the fastest growing business organization in history.

The "Air Force," as such, flew for the first time on March 1, 1910. One month earlier, Lt. Benjamin D. Foulois, for some time the only man in the "Air Force," had been given a budget of $150 with instructions to hie himself to the brothers Wright and learn something about their gol-darn flying contraption.

Quick dissolve to an item in "Planes," official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association of America:

"The United States Air Force, buying more than a million separate items a year, continues to be the biggest business in the world.

"By July, 1956, the Air Force will have bought more than $25,000,000,000 dollars worth of aircraft of all types and related equipment since the outbreak of war in Korea in June, 1950. During the next 18 months period alone, the Air Force will take delivery on approximately $10,000,000,000 worth of supplies and equipment.

"Best example of the tremendous Air Force purchasing program needed to maintain U. S. air supremacy is that USAF, during a recent seven month period, made 524,864 contracts to buy $2,557,598,000 worth of items. These products ranged from tiny screws, costing a fraction of a cent a piece, to giant aircraft costing several million dollars each."

Foreign Non-Red Nations Exceed U. S. Oil Output

TULSA, Okla., March 7 (AP)—For the second time in history, foreign non-Communist countries last December produced more crude oil than United States, The Oil & Gas Journal reported this week.

Domestic production of 6,394,000 barrels daily was exceeded 69,000 barrels per day by the foreign nations which averaged 6,463,000 daily.

A new record of 3,007,000 per day was produced in December by the Middle East, said the Journal which explained Europe's harsh winter and western Europe's growing industry accounted for the Middle East's larger output.

Although Iran has resumed production, it has not caused any curtailment of production in other Middle East countries, the magazine reported. Iran's daily production climbed 28 per cent over November to 187,000.

Canada hiked production to 306,000 barrels daily, compared to 274,000 in November and Venezuela set another new record with a 2,083,300 barrel per day output.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 (INS)—United Artists is ready and willing to take a chance on Robert Mitchum. He has formed his own company and will make five pictures a year for them. In three of these Bob will star and the other two he will direct with another top name player.

As nice a compliment as I've ever heard is the one Bob is paying his wife, Dorothy, who sticks to him through thick and thin. In compliment to her he is calling his company DRM, meaning of course, Dorothy Robert Mitchum.

He is at the moment working for Samuel Goldwyn, Jr., in "Deadly Peacemaker," so he hasn't had time to select his first story.

A girl as photogenic as Rhonda Fleming was bound to get a good TV job.

"I always wanted to do a big dramatic role on TV. I've sung and played a bit but I've never really had a chance to act. I'm going to play the part Ginger Rogers did in 'Stage Door' for 'The Best of Broadway' show in New York, April 6," said Rhonda.

She'll leave March 23 and she says she expects before she leaves to have cleared up her troubles with Dr. Lew Morrill.

"He has agreed to everything and there's nothing that stands in the way now from my getting my divorce."

Rhonda said she would come back to Hollywood to make a picture and then report in June for "Safari," a picture she'll make in Africa.

A few days ago when I talked with Tony Quinn, he confided that he was eager to play in "Seven Cities of Gold," the Father Juniper Serra story.

Now Tony's wish has come true and he has signed to play with Richard Egan and Michael Rennie.

"'Seven Cities of Gold' will be made in Mexico," said Tony, "But I've made so many pictures there I'll feel at home."

The reason 20th is not making the picture in California is because the settlements where Father Serra built his cities are so thickly populated now that it would be impossible to capture the true feeling of wilderness.

My neighbor and good friend, Danny Thomas, who is sponsoring a St. Jude hospital in Memphis, was paid a visit by Editor Paul Malloy of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Mayor Frank Tobey, and Ed Barry, one of the leading citizens.

At the auspicious moment when they were studying the plans for the hospital donated by famed architect Paul Williams, the doorbell rang. It was a special delivery letter from Jake Freedman of the Sands Hotel, pledging $10,000 to the hospital fund to be paid at $1,000 a month. Enclosed was a check for the first two installments.

This hospital is so dear to Danny's heart, because he feels that it was his prayers to St. Jude that made his success possible.

"I've just had word from Rome that the younger sister of Gina Lollobrigida, and a real beauty, is engaged to marry a doctor. This is interesting news in that Gina, herself, is the wife of Dr. Merko Skofic, and two of her other sisters are married to Italian physicians.

I keep hearing that the Lollobrigida is going to do this and that picture, but the latest rumor and one very likely true is that Tyrone Power has arranged for Gina to co-star with him in "The Magnificent Lorenzo." This will be made in Italy by Ty's own company.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Sid Chaplin and Joan Collins had lunch at 20th and later he watched Joan work on the set of "Sir Walter Raleigh."

And speaking of "Sir Walter Raleigh," Bette Davis, who has been away from the cameras for three years, admits she was nervous at first, but she is too good an actress not to get into character immediately.

Esther Williams and Ben Gage, back from Palm Beach. When Esther was asked what she and the Duke of Windsor talked about, she said: "Swimming, of course."

Rory Calhoun who never knew he had as many friends until now, has been signed to star in Ring Lardner's "Champion" on the Chrysler Corporation's "Climax" television show March 31.

Benay Venuta joins Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas in "Liliom" when it opens at the Sombrero Playhouse in Phoenix.

Dick Powell and June Allyson were the first visitors Pier Angeli was allowed to see in the Palm Springs Hospital yesterday. She'll be in the hospital for some weeks following the fall she had when her plane hit an airpocket.

The very pretty girl Charles Feldman has been introducing is Dale Wynter. The Feldman agency brought her out here to test at 20th Century-Fox.

Ann Blyth will be a guest celebrity at the Mocambo Friday, March 11, and Dinah Shore on March 12. This a gesture to Marilyn Morrison Ray and Mary Morrison, who are keeping the Mo open while Charlie is recovering from a serious illness.

Stewart Granger and three members of the "Bhowani Junction" crew in Pakistan have been ill and running high fevers, according to a cable received.

That perennial stage play "Peg O' My Heart" will be taken to Broadway dressed up as a musical by Herb Rogers, director of the Palm Springs Playhouse. Rogers is trying to get Jan Clayton for the Peg role.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

No one ever wants to have an accident. No one ever wants to kill a person with his car . . . yet thousands of lives yearly are sacrificed to the motor age on the altar of concrete and asphalt. The narrow margin between life and death can often be the matter of a careless second behind the wheel of your car. That careless second can change the course of your life. You are never the same person after you have killed a man with your car. You are never rid of that man . . . he shares your meals . . . your pleasures . . . your past . . . your future. "THE MAN I KILLED SHARES MY MEALS . . . he will for the rest of my life" drive safely on the highways

No one ever wants to have an accident. No one ever wants to kill a person with his car . . . yet thousands of lives yearly are sacrificed to the motor age on the altar of concrete and asphalt. The narrow margin between life and death can often be the matter of a careless second behind the wheel of your car. That careless second can change the course of your life. You are never the same person after you have killed a man with your car. You are never rid of that man . . . he shares your meals . . . your pleasures . . . your past . . . your future. He's with you for the rest of your life. We urge you . . . drive thoughtfully on the road. Help make March 20 to 26 Deathless Week on Maryland Highways.

AAUW Antique Study Group Plans Activities, Has Speaker

The May Picnic committee was appointed by Miss Virginia Neff at the meeting of the Antique Study Group of the Frostburg-George's Creek Branch of the American Association of University Women, recently at the home of Mrs. Joseph H. Kruson, Big Savage Mountain.

The picnic will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Carter Shryock. Mrs. James C. Shryock is chairman of the committee, assisted by the hostess, Miss Ruth Engle, Miss Margaret Price, Mrs. R. H. Mendelsohn, Mrs. H. R. Aldridge and Mrs. Frances Shafferman, Cumberland. Members are asked to bring to the picnic, copies of treasured family recipes. Husbands will be guests.

Arrangements for a bus trip to Chambersburg, Pa., will be made by Mrs. Perry Myers and Miss Kathleen Wolfe

A concert by artists of the Music and Arts Club of Cumberland March 22 was announced by Dr. Hazel G. Ramsay, chairman of the Music Study group. It will be in Compton Hall, Frostburg State Teachers College at 8 p. m. All AAUW members and their friends are invited.

Announcement of a panel discussion by students of the colleg on March 22 and 23 was made by Dr. Laura B. Harney, chairman of the International Relations group.

Miss Roseann Langans, Arts chairman, asked for entries for the Creative Arts Show being held in Westminster, April 15, 16. The local deadline is April 1; and the media are limited to painting and sculpture. AAUW members, high school and college students are eligible.

Reports on the auction of antiques in Hagerstown last month, were given by Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Mendelsohn. Miss Margaret Jones described her purchases. Others attending were Mrs. Adam Baer, Mrs. Herbert Loar and Miss Wolfe.

At the study session Mrs. Robert Little Ebert of Cumberland traced the history of silversmithing from colonial times to the present. Mrs. Ebert said that one is likely to find antique American silver in the northeastern part of the country rather than in the south because the north engaged actively in trade and the coins of many nations found their way into the coffers of New England merchants and traders. The coins were often melted down and fashioned into useful and beautiful articles for the home. In this form the silver could be identified more readily in case of loss or theft, and some of it was willed to churches. Much of this old church silver is now the property of museums and is often lent to churches for special occasions. In the south most antique silver is of English origin, because the south was interested in raising tobacco, rice and cotton and bought the manufactured goods it needed from the mother country.

Paul Revere is not only the best remembered silversmith of colonial times she said, but he also was famed in his own day as a dentist. An old ad seems to indicate that Revere did not underestimate his ability as either mechanical dentist or surgeon dentist. He said his artificial teeth were "both good to eat with and good to look at and he was the best toothpuller in North America and perhaps none better in London."

Mrs. Ebert displayed many pieces of modern silver that show an early American influence

Mr. Ebert explained a new departure in the making of silver candlesticks and cendelabra. Formerly the weight in these articles was due to a filling of cement. As this material hardened it shrank,, and often the soft silver would twist out of shape. Now one company, is preparing to put on the market candlesticks and candelabra in which they are using steel bars and plastic rather than the cement. The new materials should result in firm candlesticks large and small. He said, too, that manufacturers now have a tendency not to name specifically the use to which a piece of silver should be put but to have the owner use it as he sees fit Mrs. Ebert, also, mentioned this trend when she showed a beautiful porringer which a friend or relative might buy for a child but his mother would use for a bonbon dish.

Miss Imogene Caudill displayed pieces of her own antique silver and some belonging to her sister, Mrs. Myers. Also on the same display table was a spoonrack with spoons from all over the world. These spoons are the property of Miss Inez Johnson, native of Frostburg, world traveler an deducator who is now working in Chile. One place on the rack was empty. Miss Johnson plans to fill this with a Frostburg spoon when she returns to Frostburg. Her niece, Mrs. William W. Saylor, lent the spoons to Miss Caudill for the meeting. Dr. Harney told of her experiences here and abroad in acquiring some of her antique silver.

Miss Wilfe exhibited six dessert spoons that are 150 years old, eight teaspoons bearing the English sterling mark and more than 150 years old and five souvenir spoons, the latest of which dates from the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904. These spoons until recently were the property of Miss Grace S. Shaffer who gave them to her niece, Mrs. Pearl Shaffer, because the initials of Mr. Shaffer are the same as those engraved on the spoons by his grandfather, the late Henry B. Shaffer, pioneer businessman and banker of Frostburg. Dessert was served before the business and study session by Miss Helen Y. Hough, assisted by Mrs. Helen G. Caldwell, Miss Jane Grindle, Miss Langans, Mrs. Beulah H. Montessant, Dr. Ramsay and Miss Ruth Sherman.

Local Cable Gets Favorable Report From TV Engineers

Two consulting engineers who inspected operations of Potomac Valley Television Company February 21-22, have reported that the community TV system as operated at that time "compares favorably with other good systems throughout the country."

The report of Frank G. Kear and Richard J. Graim of the firm of Kear and Kennedy, consulting engineers, was made after the inspection requested by J. Holland Rannells who operates the local TV cable concern.

A copy of the report was sent to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

In its conclusions, the report notes the February inspection, made during the change over to five-channel reception and before the city actually was cut-in on the new service, showed excellent picture quality and adequate system maintenance.

It said when present construction work is completed it will be capable of meeting all requirements of the Federal Communications Commission in regards to radiation.

It added there will always be a question of interference to locally-received signals from the cable since the signal reception of such locally received (antenna) pictures is well below the service signal. However, if radiation is kept within FCC limits, it should be impossible to observe any degradation of picture because of the high noise level in direct reception.

Motorist Gets Jail Term On State Charge

Thomas William Bowers, 30, Berkeley Springs, drew a 30-day jail sentence yesterday morning in Trial Magistrates Court after he was unable to pay a fine of $100.75 on a state motor charge. He pleaded guilty.

Bowers also received a suspended fine of $26.45 on another motor count. He was arrested Saturday at Baltimore and Centre Streets by Officer W. E. Valentine.

Council To File List Of Names For New Bridge

The Mayor and Council is keeping suggested names for the new Blue Bridge on file and will forward all to the State Roads Commissioner at one time.

A name for the new bridge across the Potomac between Cumberland and Ridgeley came in for discussion yesterday at the council session when Cresap Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Allegany County Historical Society urged that it be designated as "George Washington Crossing."

Numerous names have been proposed for the new span, and it is the concensus one should be selected which would please all concerned. The bridge is expected to be named and opened in connection with Cumberland's bicentennial celebration later this year.

The color of the bridge is another question. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan noted that fact yesterday morning and said he believed specifications calls for it to be blue.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum said plans drawn by the Maryland SRC and approved by West Virginia SRC say the bridge will be a call for it to be blue.

It was pointed out that there had also been talk of using an aluminum paint on the bridge.

This caused Commissioner William V. Keegan to comment: "The only other color except blue that I'd go for is green."

Mayor Roy W. Eves brought the discussion to a close when he said names suggested will be kept on file and submitted together to the SRC.

Airport Road Is Damaged By Frost

A road leading to Municipal Airport was badly damaged by frost blisters, Charles F. Heller, maintenance superintendent, reported to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

Heller said the damaged area has been covered with 100 tons of shale, and he believes the entire road will have to be scarified and a six to eight-inch shale foundation installed. If the road is then oiled and chipped, he said, it should be in good condition. Present work is only temporary, he emphasized.

Heller also reported he had removed decayed and fallen guard rails along the top of Dover Cliffs and used 600 tons of shale to build a berm as protection. He said this is better protection and will save several thousand dollars when completed.

Regester Awarded Contract To Check Sewage Plant Job

An agreement naming Robert T. Regester, of Baltimore, as the city's consulting engineer on construction of the sewage treatment plant received approval of the Mayor and Council yesterday.

The agreement provides that Regester will receive two per cent of the total construction cost for his services which are divided into two groups. Among the services it is provided he will train an operator as well as perform duties in connection with construction during a base 20-month period and that he will continue as consultant for a period of one year after the plant is put into operation.

The plant is located near Offutt Street in South End and Moyer Brothers, of Altoona, is the contractor.

Mostly Routine Activity

Most of yesterday's council activity was of a routine nature. Reports filed included:

Tax collector George E. Davis reported collections as follows: General, $10,797.74; general improvement bonds, $3,336.47; 1931 sewer bonds, $730 and water rents, $27,800.92.

Finance Commissioner John J. Long in a report on receipts and disbursements showed these balances as of March 1: General, $699,907.64; water operative, $151,-195.71; general improvement bonds, $139,738.30 and sewer bonds of 1931, $7,144.93.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery said receipts totaled $2,126.40 in his office last month.

Health Report

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, listed 25 communicable diseases reported last month, 18 dental clinics held; 146 births and 55 deaths.

The Water Department read 4,500 meters, installed 10 new meters and had 12 applications for meters, according to Commissioner William J. Edwards.

Parking meter Inspector Harry Whisner said receipts increased $2.20 for the week February 20-27.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, reporting on street cleaning and street and alley department activities, said 23 paved streets, 3 alleys and 17 catch basins were cleaned; there were numerous streets on which holes were repaired with blacktop, concrete and shale. Brush and weeds were cut at various places.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said the department made 1,047 arrests last month and fines totaled $1,126. The Fire Department responded to 25 calls with the only damage resulting at the Blue Ridge bus terminal and Restaurant.

Angle Parking Set At Prospect Square

The city is planning to provide more car space and relieve congestion in the Washington Street-Prospect Square area by removing portions of the sidewalk and allowing angle parking.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan made a report on his inspection of the site involved to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

It was referred to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum with the provision that county authorities be contacted for any necessary permission.

Keegan said under the proposal 25 cars can be accommodated and it would allow more car room on Prospect Square. The only work necessary would be removal of two trees, cutting down the curb and then blacktopping.

The Police Department would paint the area when work is completed, he said.

Jurors Drawing Set For March 15

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris said yesterday that he will draw the grand and petit juries on Tuesday, March 15, for the April term of Circuit Court. The term will start Monday, April 4.

Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney, said the April term will have an average number of criminal cases. The docket is usually not very heavy due to some cases being tried on criminal informations without the necessity of presentation of the cases to the grand jury.

Lakes Over Spillways

C. L. Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, reported to the Mayor and Council yesterday that Lake Gordon is one foot over the crest of the spillway and Lake Koon seven inches above. Water consumption for the week ending yesterday was 87,930,000 gallons compared to 87,880,000 the same period a year ago.

City To Revise Garbage Contract

The Mayor and Council will revise advertisements for bids on a garbage contract to cover a five-year period instead of three, Mayor Roy W. Eves announced yesterday.

The decision was reached at a meeting following the regular session yesterday in the Mayor's office.

Eves said it was taken into consideration that any bidder if successful would have to amortize his garbage-collecting equipment over the period of the contract. This equipment would be of no value when the contract expired.

Under the plan being advertised today, the original contract will run 15 months, from May 1 to July 31, 1956, with an option to renew annually for four additional years.

By extending the contract to five years, it was explained, the financial burden on the contractor will be eased and therefore will help the city financially.

In another action at this meeting, Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz was authorized to change the proposed location of a Civil Defense building in Constitution Park. Eves said the building was originally to be located in the ball park section of the park but will be moved closer to sewer and water facilities in the vicinity of the police pistol range near the reservoir.

The move, Eves said, has the approval of local Civil Defense officials.

Union Is Seeking Contract Talks

Workers at the General Textile Mills in Lonaconing Sunday afternoon voted to notify the company that they wish to reopen the contract on wages and modifications of certain parts of the agreement, according to Melvin Harris, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers union of America (CIO).

The workers at the Lonaconing plant are members of a sub-local of the TWUA unit.

Harris said the company will be notified today that the union wishes to reopen the contract. The current agreement expires May 8.

Cumberland will be represented at a hearing planned Wednesday at 4 p. m. by the Senate Finance Committee on SB 323, according to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

He said this bill sponsored by Senator Turnbull (D-Ba. County), would limit the funds municipalities could receive from so called "Sherbow Funds" to the average received in the five-year period ending this year.

Mayor Eves said the City of Cumberland would lose revenues under the plan and will vigorously protest passage, both through the Allegany County Delegation and the Maryland Municipal League.

Mayor Eves, who is a member of the council of the Maryland Municipal League, is making plans to attend the regular meeting of the council, planned March 19 at 10 a. m. in College Park.

A complete review of legislation in which the council is interested is expected to be presented.

Local Bus Firm Being Sued For $7,500 Damages

The Cumberland Transit Company is being sued for $7,500 by a passenger who claims she was injured in a fall while alighting from a bus near Frederick Street on June 17, 1954.

Melba Moore through her counsel, Edward J. Ryan, has filed the damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the declaration, she claims that as she was alighting from the bus, she fell onto the street, "due to the dangerous and defective condition of the steps" leading from the bus to the sidewalk.

She was compelled to undergo hospital treatment and medical care and was unable to do her usual work from June 17, 1954 through September 23, 1954.

Case Is Continued In Juvenile Court

A morals case involving a 69-year-old local man and an 11-year-old girl yesterday was continued in Juvenile Court pending physical examination of the girl by county doctors.

He is currently being held in Allegany County jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl.

W.Va. Phone Rate Dispute Headed For High Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—The West Virginia Supreme Court today set April 13 as the date for hearing a petition by Jefferson County residents for review of a recent Public Service Commission order which authorized higher telephone rates.

Shirley M. Hunt filed a petition on behalf of himself and other Jefferson County subscribers of the Central Telephone.

On Jan. 31 the Public Service Commission approved higher rates for Central Telephone Co. in West Virginia. Hunt headed protestants to the rate increase.

In the petition acted on today, Hunt contended among other things that the utility's testimony at the PSC hearing was "canned," or prepared in advance, and that the persons who prepared it were not available for cross-examination by protestants.

He argued also that the PSC was in error when it refused a motion to direct Central Telephone to furnish him with detailed facts concerning the company's financial status.

Hunt said further the PSC should not have permitted Central Telephone to isolate its West Virginia operations from its operations in other states when asking for the rate increase, since the company in other states is on a sound financial basis.

The petition continued that the rate increase should not have been granted because company witnesses testified the increased income would not be used for improvements but rather to pay dividends to stockholders.

The rates Hunt is protesting were authorized for the communities of Bolivar, Burlington, Capon Bridge, Charles Town, Fort Ashby, Harpers Ferry, Moorefield, Paw Paw, Petersburg, Ranson, Romney, Shepherdstown and Wardensville.

Local Man Is Held Following Accident

Herbert Higson, 45, RFD 2, was arrested about 8:30 p. m. yesterday following an automobile accident just inside the city limits on Williams Road.

Trooper James F. Lewis of the State Police investigated the mishap along with city police.

Police said Higson was headed toward Cumberland when he lost control of his car which crashed over a 50-foot embankment. Higson was uninjured and will be tried in Trial Magistrates Court on several state motor vehicle charges. He is being held in city jail. His automobile was demolished.

Three runaways from the Rosewood State Training School who gave themselves up Sunday to the authorities here were returned yesterday to the Baltimore County institution.

Area Man Captured After Hospital Break

Three Weston State Hospital escapees, including a prisoner sentenced in Mineral county for armed robbery, were captured without resistance Saturday night, less than a mile from the mental institution.

A fourth convict who fled after holding a screw driver against an attendant's throat was nabbed shortly after the break Friday night.

Taken into custody by Weston police were William Warner Wilson, 32, of Mineral county; David Browning, 29, convicted in Mingo county for armed robbery and transferred to the hospital February 23 for psychiatric treatment, and Randolph Flint, 37, who is under indictment in Nicholas county for the fatal shooting of his wife.

Completing the quartet was Richard Thomas Ratcliff, 34, sentenced in Mingo county for felonious assault. He engineered the escape and opened two electrically operated doors.

Authorities said the break occurred as Browning was being released from a security ward to have an arm sore dressed. He was found across the street from the institution in a truck cab less than two hours after the escapee.

After pressing an electric button which opened the first of two steel doors, Browning allowed his three companions to pass through. He then closed the door, a necessary move due to the lock mechanism which requires the closing of one door before the second in the series can be opened.

Wilson, Browning and Flint were apprehended as they stood along West Virginia State Route 33. The trio had made an attempt to steal the car of a Weston barber prior to their arrest. They still wore prison clothes.

According to the escapees statement, they had no food and had spent the intervening time on a hill overlooking the road on which they were recaptured.

Weston citizens had been warned the men were "extremely dangerous." All four were transferred to the mental hospital from the State Penitentiary at Moundsville.

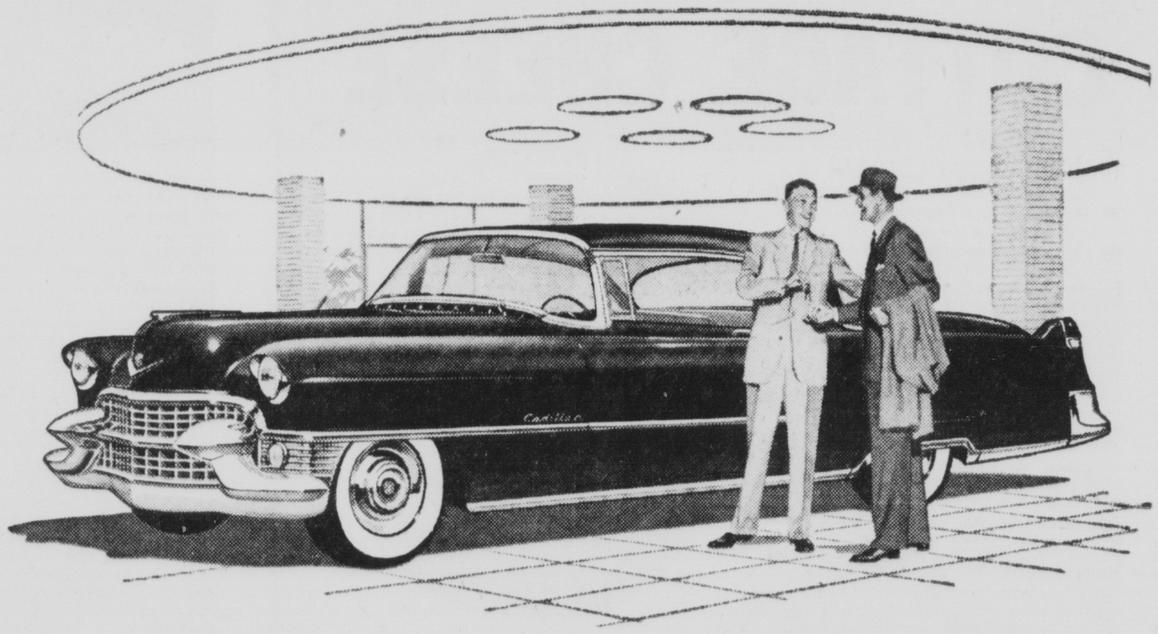
Cadillac


Acting on a 20-Year-Old Decision !

Let's suppose it was a couple of decades ago when a young lad, with his book strap over his shoulder and his lunch basket under his arm, started slowly down a dusty road that led to a country schoolhouse.

But his walk was short that day. For a big, handsome Cadillac—with its smiling driver traveling in the lad's direction—stopped and gave him a "lift."

And as he stood there on the schoolhouse lawn and watched the big car roll off into the distance, he made a decision. He decided that, some day, he would own a Cadillac.

And here you see him, his dream come true—taking the keys to a new 1955 Cadillac!

As a Cadillac dealer, we've been privileged many times to help make such a dream come true. And it never ceases to be a thrill.

But we do feel, in all sincerity, that many motorists —not realizing the Cadillac car is practical as well as wonderful—wait too long to make the move.

The lowest-priced Cadillac, for example, actually costs less than twelve different models of other makes. Its economy of operation is far beyond anything you could logically anticipate from a car of Cadillac's size and luxury. And at the time of resale, a Cadillac traditionally returns a greater share of its owner's investment than any other car in the land.

If, like the gentleman in the picture above, you have been looking forward to a Cadillac of your own—you should give careful consideration to these remarkable Cadillac facts.

It is entirely possible that the time for your Cadillac has come—and, as we said, it is always a pleasure to help make such a dream come true.

Better come in and see us today.

City Plans Protest To Bill Freezing State-Shared Funds

Cumberland will be represented at a hearing planned Wednesday at 4 p. m. by the Senate Finance Committee on SB 323, according to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

He said this bill sponsored by Senator Turnbull (D-Ba. County), would limit the funds municipalities could receive from so called "Sherbow Funds" to the average received in the five-year period ending this year.

Mayor Eves said the City of Cumberland would lose revenues under the plan and will vigorously protest passage, both through the Allegany County Delegation and the Maryland Municipal League.

Mayor Eves, who is a member of the council of the Maryland Municipal League, is making plans to attend the regular meeting of the council, planned March 19 at 10 a. m. in College Park.

A complete review of legislation in which the council is interested is expected to be presented.

Local Bus Firm Being Sued For $7,500 Damages

The Cumberland Transit Company is being sued for $7,500 by a passenger who claims she was injured in a fall while alighting from a bus near Frederick Street on June 17, 1954.

Melba Moore through her counsel, Edward J. Ryan, has filed the damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the declaration, she claims that as she was alighting from the bus, she fell onto the street, "due to the dangerous and defective condition of the steps" leading from the bus to the sidewalk.

She was compelled to undergo hospital treatment and medical care and was unable to do her usual work from June 17, 1954 through September 23, 1954.

Case Is Continued In Juvenile Court

A morals case involving a 69-year-old local man and an 11-year-old girl yesterday was continued in Juvenile Court pending physical examination of the girl by county doctors.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick said the continuance was granted to the State's Attorney to determine if more serious charges might be placed against the man.

He is currently being held in Allegany County jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl.

W.Va. Phone Rate Dispute Headed For High Court

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—The West Virginia Supreme Court today set April 13 as the date for hearing a petition by Jefferson County residents for review of a recent Public Service Commission order which authorized higher telephone rates.

Shirley M. Hunt filed a petition on behalf of himself and other Jefferson County subscribers of the Central Telephone.

On Jan. 31 the Public Service Commission approved higher rates for Central Telephone Co. in West Virginia. Hunt headed protestants to the rate increase.

In the petition acted on today, Hunt contended among other things that the utility's testimony at the PSC hearing was "canned," or prepared in advance, and that the persons who prepared it were not available for cross-examination by protestants.

He argued also that the PSC was in error when it refused a motion to direct Central Telephone to furnish him with detailed facts concerning the company's financial status.

Hunt said further the PSC should not have permitted Central Telephone to isolate its West Virginia operations from its operations in other states when asking for the rate increase, since the company in other states is on a sound financial basis.

The petition continued that the rate increase should not have been granted because company witnesses testified the increased income would not be used for improvements but rather to pay dividends to stockholders.

The rates Hunt is protesting were authorized for the communities of Bolivar, Burlington, Capon Bridge, Charles Town, Fort Ashby, Harpers Ferry, Moorefield, Paw Paw, Petersburg, Ranson, Romney, Shepherdstown and Wardensville.

Local Man Is Held Following Accident

Herbert Higson, 45, RFD 2, was arrested about 8:30 p. m. yesterday following an automobile accident just inside the city limits on Williams Road.

Trooper James F. Lewis of the State Police investigated the mishap along with city police.

Police said Higson was headed toward Cumberland when he lost control of his car which crashed over a 50-foot embankment. Higson was uninjured and will be tried in Trial Magistrates Court on several state motor vehicle charges. He is being held in city jail. His automobile was demolished.

Tip-Off In London On Russian Policy

History of diplomatic negotiations discloses that worthwhile agreements are on occasion reached in secret. There may be public discussion and a vote may be recorded in similar manner. There should be full disclosure of what is being agreed to, subject only to considerations, if valid, of military secrecy.

But private discussion at times is justified if only for the reason that when two sides take irreconcilable positions in public, neither unfortunately can back down without being accused of appeasement or surrender. The final decision, of course, should be made only in public.

The corollary of this is that when one party to international negotiations starts off by taking an inflexible position in public, he is not there to negotiate—his only purpose is to make propaganda. That is why the U.N. sponsoring the disarmament talks in London, urged that they be secret at first. All concerned agreed, a fact which encouraged the more naive to hope that the London talks might actually make some progress.

On the first day of the talks Andrei A. Gromyko of Russia made a speech. It simply restated Russia's extreme position — abolish atomic weapons without reducing big armies; trust each nation to destroy its atomic weapons and stop making new ones. But do not set foolproof inspection to guard against a double-cross.

But this didn't discourage the delegates. As long as it had been said in secret session, progress could be hoped for. And a vacation in London backed by fat expense accounts was pleasant.

Then a full account of what Gromyko had said appeared in the London Daily Worker, official organ of the British Communist party. This meant not only that Russia had broken the secrecy agreement, but also that Moscow had returned, under Khrushchev, to the Stalin policy of merely talking disarmament for propaganda purposes while rejecting all practical measures to implement disarmament.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Production In Russia

In 1928, Soviet Russia produced 4,000,000 metric tons of steel; in 1953, it produced 38,000,000 metric tons. Prior to 1917, Russia was essentially an agricultural country with a primitive industry consisting principally of small manufactures and handicrafts. The advance, therefore, to a modern industry, based on steel, has been enormous in a short period.

However, to achieve this result, agriculture was sacrificed. It was not so intended, the Russian assumption being that the modernized collective farms would produce increasingly, particularly as mechanized and scientific methods were being applied. It has not worked out that way. The farmer has measured his work against the availability of consumers goods.

Malenkov and Mikoyan believed that they could increase agricultural production by increasing the availability of consumers goods. Unfortunately for their program, Soviet Russia's commitments for armaments could not be postponed and therefore Krushchev had to make the changes in policy sharp and dramatic. What means he will use to stimulate agricultural production does not yet appear, but the neglect of consumer and light industry cannot but affect the peasant unfavorably. Raising his own food, his compensation must be measured in terms of clothing, improved housing and increased luxuries. Otherwise there is no reason for him to put himself out to increase his output.

Stalin never solved the agricultural problem: His various "Five-Year Plans" were for the benefit of heavy industry at the expense of the peasant and the worker, who nevertheless did not rebel for a complex of reasons. Expenditures for atomic experimentation undoubtedly have aggravated this situation. "Focus," a publication of the American Geographical Society, states:

". . . according to a recent American study, real wages in the Soviet Union declined precipitately during the early Five-Year Plans and only now are once again approaching the level of 1928. The amount of housing in cities is reported to have decreased from 64 square feet of floor space per person in 1928 to 46 square feet in 1953. The average urban family of five has a one-room apartment 12 by 19 feet . . ."

There is no physical reason why Soviet Russia should not be an outstanding industrial and agricultural country. In Czarist times, serfdom, absentee landlordism and an autocratic system of government held the people down. Russia missed the Industrial Revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries altogether. Soviet Russia established a rigid Socialist economy which utilized wealth and resources according to a fixed program rather than by competition. While remarkable progress was made in certain areas of production, as in steel, in others, as in agriculture, the system failed. The incentives for production which manifest themselves in private enterprise do not achieve the same results under socialism.

For instance, scientists, writers, actors, dancers and party leaders, under the Soviet system, enjoy all the benefits of our society and sometimes more, but there are no small manufacturers who produce such surprising results as the establishment of a great industry, useful in war as well as peace, out of an initial gadget, as in our country.

An astounding condition in Russia is the reduction of oil consumption; less oil being used today as fuel than 50 years ago. Whereas geologists believe that from the Caspian Sea to the Urals lie large deposits of petroleum, they have not been developed so far as is known. Coal, which is readily available in the Donets, Kuznetsk, Moscow and Ural basins, both bituminous and lignite, is replacing petroleum as fuel, whereas in the United States, petroleum is replacing coal. In 1901, Russia was producing half the world's supply of petroleum; in 1953, its share was about eight per cent of the world's supply.

Modern agriculture is a phase of a petroleum technique. Modern farming is done by machines that move on oil. Oil drilling consumes quantities of steel which must be available and the use of which cannot be postponed to make armaments. A modern country must be prepared to provide guns, bombs, butter and petroleum at the same time. The Socialist theory that some items are postponable does not work out in the over-all results.

Khrushchev apparently faces this problem, but what is his solution for it? He is following the Stalinist line of sacrificing everything for heavy industry and armaments. Stalin, however, had the advantage of an $11,000,000,000 gift from the United States and enormous technical assistance. This will not be available for Khrushchev.

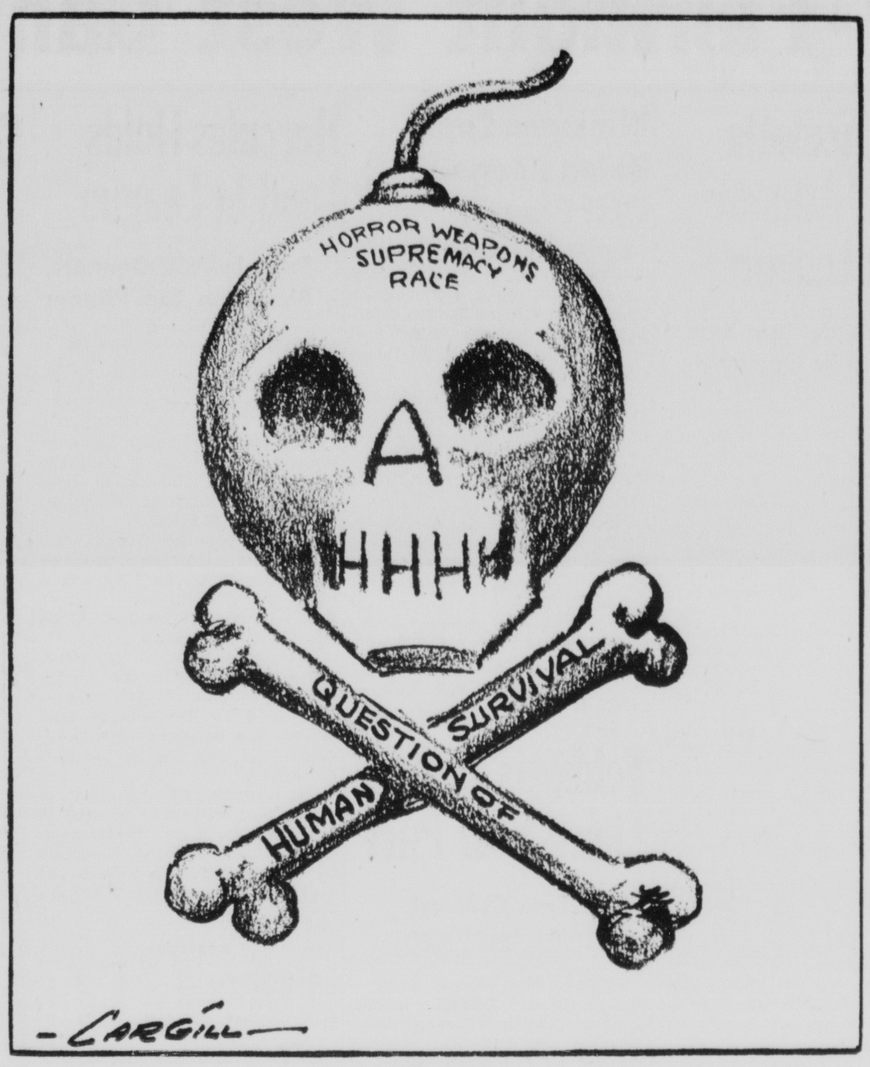
Bones Of Contention



Strategy Of Naval Blockade Of China Coast Suggested For Use By U. S.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dulles, meeting with U. S. ambassadors to 15 Asian countries last week, told them there would be no more retreats in Asia. This will be welcome news to a lot of people.

However, standing firm in Asia without war is a tough proposition, and in all humility I would like to suggest a strategy which we might use against the Chinese Reds in the Far East.

The strategy is quite simple. I would adopt exactly the same tactics as the Chinese, Indians, and other Orientals use against us when they have found themselves in a tight spot. I would use the boycott.

There are other names for this strategy. The Indians call it passive resistance. Westerners sometimes call it a blockade. But it all amounts to the same thing — refusing to have any dealings, business, economic, political, or otherwise with a high-handed or aggressor nation.

The Indians used this strategy against the British and eventually won their independence. Mahatma Gandhi, at whose home I visited many years ago, was a past master of this technique. So was Prime Minister Nehru, who studied under him. Nehru, who is critical of our Formosan policy, could not legitimately complain if we applied his own technique against the Chinese Reds.

Chiang Once A Red Leader

The Chinese Communists have also employed this strategy with great success. In 1925 I was in Canton when that city was controlled by the first wave of Communists to agitate China. Their leader was then none other than Chiang Kai-shek, the rather uncertain reed on whom we lean today. At that time Chiang was in command of the Whampo cadets south of Canton on the Pearl River, and Comrade Mikhail Markovich Borodin was sent direct from Moscow to train these cadets.

But though Chiang sent threats to American shipping not to come up the Pearl River past his fort, those threats were as empty as the threats he makes against the Reds today.

What was effective, however, and deadly effective, was the boycott which Chiang's Communist comrades in Canton enforced against the American-British-international community of Shameen, an island adjacent to Canton.

No Chinese servants, no food, no water was permitted on the island. Business came to an absolute stop. Grass grew in the streets. It had to be cut with a lawn-mower. The American consul swept out his own office. I used to see the Italian consul, majestically bearded, hauling groceries from the international commissary on a child's express wagon.

Naval Blockade

This type of boycott, I repeat, is old hat in the Orient. It's an Oriental weapon which the Orientals understand, and it's been foolish on our part not to have applied it long ago — in the form of a naval blockade.

Naturally there has been talk of a blockade in the past, but there have been two main reasons why it hasn't been adopted:

1. The proposals have come from military men, notably Admiral Arthur Radford, which has scared the wits out of our friends and allies. A boycott or blockade is more a political than a military operation, and military men should quit putting their feet in their mouths.

2. British businessmen and the British government have put trade ahead of peace. They have insisted on poking trade holes in the bamboo curtain. Other European businessmen, especially the Greeks, have joined in the Chinese trade, but the British have been the worst offenders.

However, the fact remains that Red China is fairly easy to boycott. For China is by no means self-sustaining and could not possibly subsist during a long period with outside goods shut off.

Roosevelt Almost Blockaded

The strategy of a naval blockade-boycott of the China coast was first proposed in 1936 by Admiral William Leahy, top naval adviser to Roosevelt. Leahy was not a loud-talking admiral who tried to dominate the civilian branches of government. Unlike certain admirals today, he did not make speeches. He gave advice only to his commander-in-chief.

Leahy at that time urged, and Roosevelt for a time accepted, the strategy of a naval blockade of Japan and that part of the China coast occupied by Japan, in order to stop the military march of the Japanese war lords.

His strategy was pushed by Sumner Welles, then undersecretary of state; frowned on by Cordell Hull, the secretary of state; and finally sabotaged by certain career diplomats and timid politicians. That, however, is another story. Perhaps it can be told later.

The basic fact is that a blockade-boycott of the China coast today would be even easier than a blockade of Japan in 1936, because Japan had the third largest fleet in the world. Red China today has no fleet.

And though the Red Chinese rattle their swords and talk about war when the word "blockade" is mentioned, the fact is that they can't wage war against a blockade. Ships lying off the coast aren't easy to hit, and it takes a modern navy plus a strong air force to come to grips with them. It's just about as difficult as it was for the British to come to grips with passive resistance in India.

For the boycott is an Oriental weapon that really works. The chief trouble is that our China lobby has been too busy trying to get us into war to let the country realize how we could win a great victory without getting into war.

I'll try to spell out more about this in an early column.

Questions Raised Make Security Risk Firings Harder

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Some press dispatches within the last few days in reporting the news about a new brief filed in the Supreme Court by the attorney general, have given a misleading impression to the American people by implying that President Eisenhower has been or is now at odds with the Department of Justice in the handling of Security cases.

What has been quoted to support such an alleged divergence of view was a speech made by the President on November 23 1954, in which he said something about "the right to meet your accuser face to face." While this comment —which obviously referred to court proceedings and not to the discretionary powers exercised by the government in hiring and firing employes — was resurrected by some of the press associations, they neglected to point to the President's comments of a few days later explaining the real meaning of his speech.

Federal Employment A Privilege

At the press conference, which occurred on December 2, 1953, Mr. Eisenhower, replying to a direct question about this same speech, said there was one point which he must make clear, namely that employment in the federal government is not a right of citizenship but a privilege. He added that if there is real justifiable belief and conviction that a person is a security risk, you cannot keep him in a delicate position and in certain instances probably couldn't keep such persons at all. The President emphasized that there is a difference between determining whether or not a man should work for the federal government and charging anyone with a heinous crime of any kind.

It was clear that Mr. Eisenhower was differentiating in the traditional way between a criminal court proceeding and a personnel inquiry in which the government decides whether to hire or fire an employe. The applicant or the employe does not have to be "proved" a security risk. It is necessary only for the government to be convinced of his unreliability or unsuitability by reason of his background.

The issue as to the rights of the individual employe to convert a personal inquiry into a court proceeding is coming up for decision soon in the Supreme Court of the United States. Already extensive briefs have been filed by both sides in a test case involving a college professor who was not cleared for service as a consultant to the government on account of alleged connections with Communists and declared ineligible on security grounds. The case originated under the Truman loyalty program.

No Legal Obligation

The Department of of Justice has just filed a brief with the Supreme Court which points out that to grant to an individual a hearing within the government is a privilege bestowed by the government itself, that it really is under no legal obligation to furnish any reasons if it wants to fire an employe, and that the executive branch must determine for itself the scope of its personnel restrictions.

The Supreme Court of the United States ruled in the famous Myers case involving a postmaster dismissed obviously for political reasons that the chief executive could remove any employe at will in the executive departments unless Congress by law had enumerated specific causes for removal. The late President Franklin Roosevelt removed a member of the Federal Trade Commission because "your mind doesn't go along with mine," but the Supreme Court held that Congress in creating the commission had specified grounds for removal and political compatibility wasn't one of them.

So the absolute right of removal resides in the executive branch until and unless Congress qualifies it in some way by law.

An attempt is being made by some of the defencers of the college professor in question to argue that the case hinges on a constitutional requirement which says a person shall not be deprived of life, liberty and property without "due process," namely a trial. Is he guaranteed by the Constitution, however, the "liberty" to undermine his own government from within? If so, it would mean that the government departments would have to submit to a court trial if they wanted to get rid of an incompetent employe or an indiscreet employe or if they just wanted to give the job to somebody else.

Court Asked To Decide

The issue basically turns on whether the FBI should be required to bring into the hearings as witness for cross-examination the persons from whom it got its information originally about a suspected employe. The President has approved slight amendments in existing regulations so that the FBI will furnish to the accused a complete statement of the charges and as comprehensively as possible the nature of the information. But the new program does not provide that the identity of all informants be disclosed.

The FBI says the whole system would break down if the Communists were to be able to learn by one means or another who the informants are so that they could either intimidate or liquidate them. So again the Supreme Court is asked to decide an issue it has had up before in the so-called "clear and present danger" cases—whether or not to tell the Department of Justice and the Civil Service Commission, in effect, that they must wait until a conspiracy is actually fulfilled and the damage done before firing a suspected employe. In other words, must the federal departments here get an affidavit from Moscow and corroborative testimony from the Russian Secret Service itself before anybody in America can be fired as a security risk?

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Does that Democratic proposal for tax reduction pack the pungent tang of sincerity? If it does we will ask you three questions, why, why, why?

Why didn't they do the paper hat trick during their own administrations? They had from 1932 to 1952 to whittle the excess excise.

When your sheep dog sings counter-point to vulpine ululation it's done to embarrass the administration.

The Democrats know there is no more chance of clipping taxes than there is of putting leaves back on trees.

They know there is an invisible rachet on the tax cog-wheel that prevents it from going backward.

The direct income plaster started in England in 1848 for the duration of one year. That's so long ago the crow should be walking by now.

Before that Parliament granted two-fifteenths from the commons to begin war with France in 1512. It doesn't say two-fifteenths of what but it wasn't old bottles and rags.

Again in 1798 Bill Pitt stuck a personal plaster on the walking billboards to finance a war with Napoleon. But these two emergencies faded like hill-billy calico.

The first head-on income tax in America was enacted July 1, 1862. It taxed all incomes over six hundred. Congress repealed it in 1871. It collected $347,000,000 in that time. Not bad for the 2-o'clock infield.

Why should the Democrats propose a prescription the Republicans would get credit for mixing? It's their drugstore.

We know that politics makes strange bedfellows. We're looking for the bird who stuffed the doorknobs in the mattress.

The Job Nobody Wants

By Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

To judge from the way the Democrats are talking nowadays, they are going to have to hit somebody over the head and drag him unconscious into the convention hall, in order to find a candidate to run against President Eisenhower in 1956.

All, or nearly all, the leading Democratic professionals believe that the President is sure to run again. All, or nearly all, believe that he is sure to win. According to reliable report, both beliefs are largely shared by Adlai Stevenson, who is accounted way out in front for the Democratic nomination.

Those who know Stevenson well believe that he really has not made up his mind whether he wants the nomination, and that, characteristically, he won't make up his mind until he has to. They also believe that, if Eisenhower still looks as strong then as he does today, Stevenson will try to avoid being nominated if he can honorably do so. There is, after all, nothing very tempting about being Eisenhower's sacrificial lamb twice hand-running.

Two Unsatisfactory Choices

But it is difficult to see how Stevenson could avoid this fate without being made to look timid, or silly, or both. Stevenson could, for example, simply announce that he was not a candidate and throw his support to his friend Averell Harriman, governor of New York. But this would immediately have two effects. Stevenson would be accused of running out when the going got tough, with fatal effects on his political future. And his backing the Fair Dealing Harriman—he could hardly back anyone else—would start an unholy row in the Democratic party.

There are, to be sure, ways in which Stevenson could be beaten even if he wanted the nomination and made a fight for it. If Harriman tries for the nomination on his own, for example—and as governor of New York he has a legitimate claim — the loss of New York's 90 delegate votes might block Stevenson.

Or Sen. Estes Kefauver might block Stevenson in another way. If Kefauver decides to make a second try for the nomination, his strategy is already clear. He will challenge Stevenson to primary contests in such states as Oregon, Nebraska, New Hampshire, and even Stevenson's native Illinois. If Stevenson ducked the challenge, this would hurt him badly. But if he were beaten by Kefauver (who has a real following in the party) the wound might well be mortal.

Yet the odds are still high on Stevenson all the same. Kefauver, who will be only 57 years old in 1960, is just as doubtful as Stevenson about the wisdom of running in 1956, and for precisely the same reason. Moreover, Stevenson has the biggest name in the party, and he is far more acceptable to all sections of the party than Harriman, Kefauver, or any other presently visible candidate.

New Figure Possible

Some new figure may emerge, of course—Stevenson himself, after all, was practically unknown 18 months before the 1952 convention. But as of today, it looks like Stevenson, even if he has to be hit over the head first.

There are a minority among Stevenson's friends and advisers who seriously believe that he can beat Eisenhower in 1956. For one thing, the peace and prosperity of which the Republican boast may not last for 18 months. And even if there are no small wars and no bad economic troubles, there are important political differences between 1952 and 1956.

A number of states—notably the two eastern giants, New York and Pennsylvania—which were in Republican hands in 1952 will be Democratic controlled in 1956. Moreover, even the Republicans are inclined to agree that Eisenhower is unlikely to carry the Southern states he took in 1952. And after all, the hopeful Stevenson adherents point out, a change of only one vote in twenty in the 1952 voting would pull Stevenson equal to Eisenhower.

Hollow Speculation

There are even Democrats who claim (their voices audibly vibrant with hope) that Eisenhower is determined to retire, full of honors, at the end of this term. They profess to believe that the thing is already settled (that the President has tapped Chief Justice Earl Warren for the nomination; and that it was to make sure that Warren would accept the poisoned chalice that Attorney General Herbert Brownell flew out to California to see him before his appointment was announced.)

Yet this sort of Democratic speculation has a certain, hollow, whistling-in-the-dark sound. It contrasts sharply with the sound of happy confidence in the voice of one of the House Republican leaders, who remarked recently: "Of course Ike will run, and of course he'll win. He's the greatest politician in the country, as great as Franklin Roosevelt ever was — greater, because nobody's sore at Ike."

Some Advice For Proper Home Nursing Of Invalids

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Home nursing of the sick and bedridden presents numerous problems to the person without experience along this line. The majority of families cannot afford a registered or practical nurse, hence members of the household must assume these duties. This is one reason why the Red Cross course on this subject is so popular.

Suppose, for example, the grandpa suffered from a stroke which will keep him in bed five to six weeks. The two daughters agree to take turns at nursing. One of the first considerations is to select a room that is comfortable for the patient (near the bathroom preferred) and convenient for the nurse.

The nurse must keep in mind that efficiency and fatigue are not congenial. If she overworks during the first few days of the illness, the household may find itself with two persons in bed instead of one. This can be avoided by conserving strength and energy and obtaining adequate food and rest.

The physician's orders should be written down to prevent misunderstanding and to be certain that the patient is receiving the proper medications and management. In addition, a chart can list temperature, pulse, respiration, and the exact time that any medicine is given. The diet, volume of fluids consumed, and factors dealing with elimination also should be recorded.

A routine ought to be established to assure proper care. The face and hands of the patient should be washed before breakfast. If grandpa cannot brush his teeth and rinse his mouth, this can be done with cotton swabs or the washcloth. After the hair is combed, breakfast is served.

After a short period of relaxation, a bath is in order. If the patient cannot use the tub, a sponge bath is given in bed. The back deserves special attention because prolonged rest encourages bedsores over pressure points such as the buttocks, hips, and heels.

The lesions can be discouraged by changing the position of the patient frequently and by bathing, massaging, and keeping the skin dry. This explains why alcohol backrubs, followed by dusting with talc is a routine maneuver in hospitals. If bedsores appear, the use of a rubber air ring or cotton pad lifts pressure from the vulnerable areas.

Rest is essential for the ill person, which means that the attendant should not talk too much and visitors must be restricted. A well ventilated room without drafts is ideal. Extra pillows lend support and encourage relaxation; a pillow under the knees and a rolled blanket at the foot of the bed are examples.

(Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of books on home nursing.)

TOMORROW: Hair growth and form.

INTESTINAL DISORDER

Mrs. D. writes: Do children ever outgrow a celiac condition?

REPLY

Yes, but treatment of this intestinal disturbance is necessary to maintain nutrition while healing is taking place.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

A Park Avenue psychiatrist was somewhat surprised to find one of Hollywood's most successful, publicized, and effervescent glamor girls waiting anxiously to see him. "Oh, Doctor," she explained piteously. "I need your help so badly! I can't sing; I can't dance; I can't act. It's so frustrating!"

The psychiatrist adopted his most soothing manner.

"You can quit show business entirely," he reminded her.

Tip-Off In London On Russian Policy

History of diplomatic negotiations discloses that worthwhile agreements are on occasion reached in secret. There may be public discussion and a vote may be recorded in similar manner. There should be full disclosure of what is being agreed to, subject only to considerations, if valid, of military secrecy.

But private discussion at times is justified if only for the reason that when two sides take irreconcilable positions in public, neither unfortunately can back down without being accused of appeasement or surrender. The final decision, of course, should be made only in public.

The corollary of this is that when one party to international negotiations starts off by taking an inflexible position in public, he is not there to negotiate—his only purpose is to make propaganda. That is why the U.N. sponsoring the disarmament talks in London, urged that they be secret at first. All concerned agreed, a fact which encouraged the more naive to hope that the London talks might actually make some progress.

On the first day of the talks Andrei A. Gromyko of Russia made a speech. It simply restated Russia's extreme position — abolish atomic weapons without reducing big armies; trust each nation to destroy its atomic weapons and stop making new ones. But do not set foolproof inspection to guard against a double-cross.

But this didn't discourage the delegates. As long as it had been said in secret session, progress could be hoped for. And a vacation in London backed by fat expense accounts was pleasant.

Then a full account of what Gromyko had said appeared in the London Daily Worker, official organ of the British Communist party. This meant not only that Russia had broken the secrecy agreement, but also that Moscow had returned, under Khrushchev, to the Stalin policy of merely talking disarmament for propaganda purposes while rejecting all practical measures to implement disarmament.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Production In Russia

In 1928, Soviet Russia produced 4,000,000 metric tons of steel; in 1953, it produced 38,000,000 metric tons. Prior to 1917, Russia was essentially an agricultural country with a primitive industry consisting principally of small manufactures and handicrafts. The advance, therefore, to a modern industry, based on steel, has been enormous in a short period.

However, to achieve this result, agriculture was sacrificed. It was not so intended, the Russian assumption being that the modernized collective farms would produce increasingly, particularly as mechanized and scientific methods were being applied. It has not worked out that way. The farmer has measured his work against the availability of consumers goods.

Malenkov and Mikoyan believed that they could increase agricultural production by increasing the availability of consumers goods. Unfortunately for their program, Soviet Russia's commitments for armaments could not be postponed and therefore Krushchev had to make the changes in policy sharp and dramatic. What means he will use to stimulate agricultural production does not yet appear, but the neglect of consumer and light industry cannot but affect the peasant unfavorably. Raising his own food, his compensation must be measured in terms of clothing, improved housing and increased luxuries. Otherwise there is no reason for him to put himself out to increase his output.

Stalin never solved the agricultural problem: His various "Five-Year Plans" were for the benefit of heavy industry at the expense of the peasant and the worker, who nevertheless did not rebel for a complex of reasons. Expenditures for atomic experimentation undoubtedly have aggravated this situation. "Focus," a publication of the American Geographical Society, states:

". . . according to a recent American study, real wages in the Soviet Union declined precipitately during the early Five-Year Plans and only now are once again approaching the level of 1928. The amount of housing in cities is reported to have decreased from 64 square feet of floor space per person in 1928 to 46 square feet in 1953. The average urban family of five has a one-room apartment 12 by 19 feet . . ."

There is no physical reason why Soviet Russia should not be an outstanding industrial and agricultural country. In Czarist times, serfdom, absentee landlordism and an autocratic system of government held the people down. Russia missed the Industrial Revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries altogether. Soviet Russia established a rigid Socialist economy which utilized wealth and resources according to a fixed program rather than by competition. While remarkable progress was made in certain areas of production, as in steel, in others, as in agriculture, the system failed. The incentives for production which manifest themselves in private enterprise do not achieve the same results under socialism.

For instance, scientists, writers, actors, dancers and party leaders, under the Soviet system, enjoy all the benefits of our society and sometimes more, but there are no small manufacturers who produce such surprising results as the establishment of a great industry, useful in war as well as peace, out of an initial gadget, as in our country.

An astounding condition in Russia is the reduction of oil consumption: less oil being used today as fuel than 50 years ago. Whereas geologists believe that from the Caspian Sea to the Urals lie large deposits of petroleum, they have not been developed so far as is known. Coal, which is readily available in the Donets, Kuznetsk, Moscow and Ural basins, both bituminous and lignite, is replacing petroleum as fuel, whereas in the United States, petroleum is replacing coal. In 1901, Russia was producing half the world's supply of petroleum; in 1953, its share was about eight per cent of the world's supply.

Modern agriculture is a phase of a petroleum technique. Modern farming is done by machines that move on oil. Oil drilling consumes quantities of steel which must be available and the use of which cannot be postponed to make armaments. A modern country must be prepared to provide guns, bombs, butter and petroleum at the same time. The Socialist theory that some items are postponable does not work out in the over-all results.

Khrushchev apparently faces this problem, but what is his solution for it? He is following the Stalinist line of sacrificing everything for heavy industry and armaments. Stalin, however, had the advantage of an $11,000,000,000 gift from the United States and enormous technical assistance. This will not be available for Khrushchev.

Strategy Of Naval Blockade Of China Coast Suggested For Use By U. S.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dulles, meeting with U. S. ambassadors to 15 Asian countries last week, told them there would be no more retreats in Asia. This will be welcome news to a lot of people.

However, standing firm in Asia without war is a tough proposition, and in all humility I would like to suggest a strategy which we might use against the Chinese Reds in the Far East.

The strategy is quite simple. I would adopt exactly the same tactics as the Chinese, Indians, and other Orientals use against us when they have found themselves in a tight spot. I would use the boycott.

There are other names for this strategy. The Indians call it passive resistance. Westerners sometimes call it a blockade. But it all amounts to the same thing — refusing to have any dealings, business, economic, political, or otherwise with a high-handed or aggressor nation.

The Indians used this strategy against the British and eventually won their independence. Mahatma Gandhi, at whose home I visited many years ago, was a past master of this technique. So was Prime Minister Nehru, who studied under him. Nehru, who is critical of our Formosan policy, could not legitimately complain if we applied his own technique against the Chinese Reds.

Chiang Once A Red Leader

The Chinese Communists have also employed this strategy with great success. In 1925 I was in Canton when that city was controlled by the first wave of Communists to agitate China. Their leader was then none other than Chiang Kai-shek, the rather uncertain reed on whom we lean today. At that time Chiang was in command of the Whampo cadets south of Canton on the Pearl River, and Comrade Mikhail Markovich Borodin was sent direct from Moscow to train these cadets.

But though Chiang sent threats to American shipping not to come up the Pearl River past his fort, those threats were as empty as the threats he makes against the Reds today.

What was effective, however, and deadly effective, was the boycott which Chiang's Communist comrades in Canton enforced against the American-British-international community of Shameen, an island adjacent to Canton.

No Chinese servants, no food, no water was permitted on the island. Business came to an absolute stop. Grass grew in the streets. It had to be cut with a lawn-mower. The American consul swept out his own office. I used to see the Italian consul, majestically bearded, hauling groceries from the international commissary on a child's express wagon.

Naval Blockade

This type of boycott, I repeat, is old hat in the Orient. It's an Oriental weapon which the Orientals understand, and it's been foolish on our part not to have applied it long ago — in the form of a naval blockade.

Naturally there has been talk of a blockade in the past, but there have been two main reasons why it hasn't been adopted:

1. The proposals have come from military men, notably Admiral Arthur Radford, which has scared the wits out of our friends and allies. A boycott or blockade is more a political than a military operation, and military men should quit putting their feet in their mouths.

2. British businessmen and the British government have put trade ahead of peace. They have insisted on poking trade holes in the bamboo curtain. Other European businessmen, especially the Greeks, have joined in the Chinese trade, but the British have been the worst offenders.

However, the fact remains that Red China is fairly easy to boycott. For China is by no means self-sustaining and could not possibly subsist during a long period with outside goods shut off.

Roosevelt Almost Blockaded

The strategy of a naval blockade-boycott of the China coast was first proposed in 1936 by Admiral William Leahy, top naval adviser to Roosevelt. Leahy was not a loud-talking admiral who tried to dominate the civilian branches of government. Unlike certain admirals today, he did not make speeches. He gave advice only to his commander-in-chief.

Leahy at that time urged, and Roosevelt for a time accepted, the strategy of a naval blockade of Japan and that part of the China coast occupied by Japan, in order to stop the military march of the Japanese war lords.

His strategy was pushed by Sumner Welles, then undersecretary of state; frowned on by Cordell Hull, the secretary of state; and finally sabotaged by certain career diplomats and timid politicians. That, however, is another story. Perhaps it can be told later.

The basic fact is that a blockade-boycott of the China coast today would be even easier than a blockade of Japan in 1936, because Japan had the third largest fleet in the world. Red China today has no fleet.

And though the Red Chinese rattle their swords and talk about war when the word "blockade" is mentioned, the fact is that they can't wage war against a blockade. Ships lying off the coast aren't easy to hit, and it takes a modern navy plus a strong air force to come to grips with them. It's just about as difficult as it was for the British to come to grips with passive resistance in India.

For the boycott is an Oriental weapon that really works. The chief trouble is that our China lobby has been too busy trying to get us into war to let the country realize how we could win a great victory without getting into war.

I'll try to spell out more about this in an early column.

The Job Nobody Wants

By Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

To judge from the way the Democrats are talking nowadays, they are going to have to hit somebody over the head and drag him unconscious into the convention hall, in order to find a candidate to run against President Eisenhower in 1956.

All, or nearly all, the leading Democratic professionals believe that the President is sure to run again. All, or nearly all, believe that he is sure to win. According to reliable report, both beliefs are largely shared by Adlai Stevenson, who is accounted way out in front for the Democratic nomination.

Those who know Stevenson well believe that he really has not made up his mind whether he wants the nomination, and that, characteristically, he won't make up his mind until he has to. They also believe that, if Eisenhower still looks as strong then as he does today, Stevenson will try to avoid being nominated if he can honorably do so. There is, after all, nothing very tempting about being Eisenhower's sacrificial lamb twice hand-running.

Two Unsatisfactory Choices

But it is difficult to see how Stevenson could avoid this fate without being made to look timid, or silly, or both. Stevenson could, for example, simply announce that he was not a candidate and throw his support to his friend Averell Harriman, governor of New York. But this would immediately have two effects. Stevenson would be accused of running out when the going got tough, with fatal effects on his political future. And his backing the Fair Dealing Harriman—he could hardly back anyone else—would start an unholy row in the Democratic party.

There are, to be sure, ways in which Stevenson could be beaten even if he wanted the nomination and made a fight for it. If Harriman tries for the nomination on his own, for example—and as governor of New York he has a legitimate claim — the loss of New York's 90 delegate votes might block Stevenson.

Or Sen. Estes Kefauver might block Stevenson in another way. If Kefauver decides to make a second try for the nomination, his strategy is already clear. He will challenge Stevenson to primary contests in such states as Oregon, Nebraska, New Hampshire, and even Stevenson's native Illinois. If Stevenson ducked the challenge, this would hurt him badly. But if he were beaten by Kefauver (who has a real following in the party) the wound might well be mortal.

Yet the odds are still high on Stevenson all the same. Kefauver, who will be only 57 years old in 1960, is just as doubtful as Stevenson about the wisdom of running in 1956, and for precisely the same reason. Moreover, Stevenson has the biggest name in the party, and he is far more acceptable to all sections of the party than Harriman, Kefauver, or any other presently visible candidate.

New Figure Possible

Some new figure may emerge, of course—Stevenson himself, after all, was practically unknown 18 months before the 1952 convention. But as of today, it looks like Stevenson, even if he has to be hit over the head first.

There are a minority among Stevenson's friends and advisers who seriously believe that he can beat Eisenhower in 1956. For one thing, the peace and prosperity of which the Republican boast may not last for 18 months. And even if there are no small wars and no bad economic troubles, there are important political differences between 1952 and 1956.

A number of states—notably the two eastern giants, New York and Pennsylvania—which were in Republican hands in 1952 will be Democratic controlled in 1956. Moreover, even the Republicans are inclined to agree that Eisenhower is unlikely to carry the Southern states he took in 1952. And after all, the hopeful Stevenson adherents point out, a change of only one vote in twenty in the 1952 voting would pull Stevenson equal to Eisenhower.

Hollow Speculation

There are even Democrats who claim (their voices audibly vibrant with hope) that Eisenhower is determined to retire, full of honors, at the end of this term. They profess to believe that the thing is already settled (that the President has tapped Chief Justice Earl Warren for the nomination; and that it was to make sure that Warren would accept the poisoned chalice that Attorney General Herbert Brownell flew out to California to see him before his appointment was announced.)

Yet this sort of Democratic speculation has a certain, hollow, whistling-in-the-dark sound. It contrasts sharply with the sound of happy confidence in the voice of one of the House Republican leaders, who remarked recently: "Of course Ike will run, and of course he'll win. He's the greatest politician in the country, as great as Franklin Roosevelt ever was — greater, because nobody's sore at Ike."

Some Advice For Proper Home Nursing Of Invalids

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Home nursing of the sick and bedridden presents numerous problems to the person without experience along this line. The majority of families cannot afford a registered or practical nurse, hence members of the household must assume these duties. This is one reason why the Red Cross course on this subject is so popular.

Suppose, for example, that grandpa suffered from a stroke which will keep him in bed five to six weeks. The two daughters agree to take turns at nursing. One of the first considerations is to select a room that is comfortable for the patient (near the bathroom preferred) and convenient for the nurse.

The nurse must keep in mind that efficiency and fatigue are not congenial. If she overworks during the first few days of the illness, the household may find itself with two persons in bed instead of one. This can be avoided by conserving strength and energy and obtaining adequate food and rest.

The physician's orders should be written down to prevent misunderstanding and to be certain that the patient is receiving the proper medications and management. In addition, a chart can list temperature, pulse, respiration, and the exact time that any medicine is given. The diet, volume of fluids consumed, and factors dealing with elimination also should be recorded.

A routine ought to be established to assure proper care. The face and hands of the patient should be washed before breakfast. If grandpa cannot brush his teeth and rinse his mouth, this can be done with cotton swabs or the washcloth. After the hair is combed, breakfast is served.

After a short period of relaxation, a bath is in order. If the patient cannot use the tub, a sponge bath is given in bed. The back deserves special attention because prolonged rest encourages bedsores over pressure points such as the buttocks, hips, and heels.

The lesions can be discouraged by changing the position of the patient frequently and by bathing, massaging, and keeping the skin dry. This explains why alcohol backrubs, followed by dusting with talc is a routine maneuver in hospitals. If bedsores appear, the use of a rubber air ring or cotton pad lifts pressure from the vulnerable areas.

Rest is essential for the ill person, which means that the attendant should not talk too much and visitors must be restricted. A well ventilated room without drafts is ideal. Extra pillows lend support and encourage relaxation; a pillow under the knees and a rolled blanket at the foot of the bed are examples.

INTESTINAL DISORDER

Mrs. D. writes: Do children ever outgrow a celiac condition?

REPLY

Yes, but treatment of this intestinal disturbance is necessary to maintain nutrition while healing is taking place.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

A Park Avenue psychiatrist was somewhat surprised to find one of Hollywood's most successful, publicized, and effervescent glamor girls waiting anxiously to see him. "Oh, Doctor," she explained piteously. "I need your help so badly! I can't sing; I can't dance; I can't act. It's so frustrating!"

The psychiatrist adopted his most soothing manner.

"You can quit show business entirely," he reminded her.

50 Homers For Baker?

TRAPPE, Md. (AP)—Frank (Home Run) Baker, new member of the Hall of Fame, believes he could have hit 50 homers a season if the lively ball were in use in his time.

Chief Stopped Bout Set Ring Precedent • • • Fisher Testimonial Girl Averages 18.8

By C. V. BURNS

OSCAR A. EYERMAN, former Cumberland chief of police, for whom final rites will be held today, was one of Cumberland's best boxing fans of yesteryear.

Before Chief Eyerman left recently for the Pacific Coast to visit his son, we had a long talk with him about some of the old shows staged here and he got quite a chuckle when we recalled the time he jumped into the ring, stopped a bout and declared the boxer, who had claimed a foul, the winner.

It was 33 years ago that the Chief set a precedent in the boxing game when he climbed into the ring at the Liberty Theater and stopped the main bout of the Queen City A. C. card while "Red" Mack, of Albany, N. Y., was on the floor claiming a foul at the hands of Frankie Rice, of Baltimore.

Referee Chris Himmler refused to allow Mack's claim as he slipped to the floor holding his groin and had tolled off the count of nine in the fourth round when Chief Eyerman came through the ropes, lifted Mack to his feet, and hoisted the boxer's hand in the air signifying him winner on a foul.

Bedlam broke loose at the Chief's action. The fans were on their feet yelling and Mack dropped after Jimmy Betts, his manager, had set up a howl earlier in the round, claiming that Rice was hitting low.

James K. Ford, representative of the boxing commission, came into the ring and questioned the Chief's authority to stop the bout and a discussion between officials and managers waged ten minutes with the fans joining in the general melee.

An examination of Mack by Dr. Edward Harris failed to show any signs of injury and no apparent damage had been done the protector he wore, although there was evidence of bruises. Many fans upheld the action of the Chief and declared Rice had landed at least five foul blows.

The fight was continued and a draw verdict given at the end of 12 rounds. Rice was warned about hitting low and he did little fighting after the fourth round.

There had been an epidemic of fouling in fights all over the country in those days and Chief Eyerman decided to do something about it since several bad shows already had been foisted on the local public.

"It didn't look good to me so I decided to stop the affair," Eyerman told the writer.

Sammy Harris was the manager of Rice and George Chaney, who had lost five fights via fouls to Johnny Dundee, Frankie Britt, Danny Kramer, Harry "Kid" Brown and Ted Marchant. Rice lost on a foul to Bobby Garcia in Baltimore after his bout here.

Eyerman, who served as police chief here 30 years, seldom missed a fistic show and was a keen judge of boxing. He died last week in Los Angeles. The Chief was 74.

BRUCE M. FISHER, the one-time Ferndale High and Bedford High School grid and cage mentor, will be honored at a testimonial dinner in Johnstown, April 30, in recognition of his completion of 30 years of high school coaching.

Over 500 tickets have been sold for the affair to be held at the Fort Stanwix Hotel. Added features will be a floor show and dance.

Fisher, now coach at Penn High near Verona, Pa., was at Ferndale High from 1925 to 1944 and at Bedford from 1944 through 1945. His 1945 grid team at Bedford posted a 10-0 record and yielded only six points. And that touchdown was scored by Ferndale.

Bruce was born in Monroe Township in Bedford county where he still owns a farm and spends his vacations there.

COACH Pauline Hamilton of Valley High School reports that Mary Dorothy Kirkwood has scored 207 points in eleven games for an 18.8 average this season.

Miss Kirkwood has scored 88 field goals and she turned in an exceptionally good foul shooting average of .721, sinking 31 of 43 free throws.

Elsie Coburn and Shelva Wilson, her running mates, tallied 143 and 140 points, respectively.

MARY ANN DOWNEY, the Baltimore golf star, who holds two legs on the Old Export Bowl, donated to the annual winners in the Cumberland Country Club's Invitation Tournaments, finished as runner-up in the South Atlantic amateur tourney at Ormond Beach, Fla., losing out in the finals to Pat Lesser, of Seattle, 3 and 2.

WE LIKE the statement credited to Ed Macauley, veteran center of the Boston Celtics of the NBA, who plans to retire at the end of the season to go into radio and television.

Macauley said:

"I have reached the 'metallic' age in basketball. There's silver in my hair, gold in my teeth and lead in my feet."

NINE DAYS before his death, Albert K. "Rosey" Rowswell, the Pittsburgh Pirates' broadcaster, poet and after-dinner speaker, made out his will.

He left $10,000 to each of his sons, William and A. K., Jr. His widow receives the remainder of the estate, including the Fox Chapel property and all rights and royalties from songs and poems he produced.

OSCAR A. EYERMAN
As Young Police Chief

DUSTY RHODES, the Giants' hitting star in the 1954 World Series, came up with a gem the other day when he was asked why the Pirates gave the Giants so much trouble.

He answered:

"Guess it was 'cause they didn't have no place to go 'cept home and they're up there kinda looseygoosey. When a team gets looseygoosey, it's hard to beat!"

Delaney Wins New York Bout

Ohioan Decisions Wilson At St. Nick

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Lefty Ronnie Delaney had his troubles, but he punched out a 10-round decision over Sugar Al Wilson, a rough customer from New York, tonight in the feature bout at St. Nicholas Arena. Delaney weighed 149½, Wilson 147.

Delaney, a 3-1 favorite, started like a house afire when he drew blood from Wilson's nose in the first round. Wilson couldn't solve his left-handed style.

But with it all, Wilson carried the fight in the middle rounds and until Delaney decided to take the offensive in the seventh round, Wilson was giving the 25-year-old Akron, Ohio, battler a run for his money.

Race Card Canceled Due To Frozen Track

LINCOLN, R.I., March 7 (AP) — The race card at Lincoln Downs was canceled today and tomorrow after officials at the horse track discovered the racing strip frozen solid.

The sudden drop in temperature after a weekend of snow and rain solidified the track which, oddly, was fast Saturday, opening day.

Saturday there were two or three inches of soft, if somewhat sloppy, earth atop the otherwise frozen oval.

After a later inspection of the track, officials called off today's nine-race program and there will be no racing tomorrow.

Hartman Gets 33 As Battlers Win

Alderson-Broaddus Tops Minot, 100-72

KANSAS CITY, March 7 (AP) — Alderson-Broaddus of Philippi, W. Va., got off to a fat lead today and then coasted to 100-72 victory over the Minot, N. D., Teachers in the opening game of the National Intercollegiate (NAIA) Basketball Tournament today.

The West Virginians hustled to a 14-0 lead in the first five minutes and were in front 20-2 with six minutes left in the period. A brief Minot rally cut Alderson-Broaddus' halftime advantage to 44-36.

Carl Hartman, 5-11 forward, who came into the tournament with a total of 1,076 points for 34 games, led the victors with 33 points.

Gil Turner Stops Miceli In Eighth

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 7 (AP) —Gil Turner, Philadelphia middleweight contender, scored a technical knockout over Joe Miceli of New York in 44 seconds of the eighth round of a scheduled 10 at the Eastern Parkway Arena tonight. Turner weighed 155½, Miceli 147.

Referee Petey Scalzo stopped the bout as Turner kept pegging away at Miceli's left eye, which was cut about the brow and almost closed.

It was the second straight knockout victory for Turner over Miceli. In their previous meeting in Philadelphia two years ago Gil stopped the New Yorker in the sixth round.

Miceli's eye was cut in the fourth round and the wound bled profusely. Dr. Samuel Swetnick, commission medico, examined the wound at the end of the sixth, but permitted the bout to continue. There were no knockdowns.

Tebbetts Given Three-Year Pact

Previous Contract Expires This Year

TAMPA, Fla., March 7 (AP) — George (Birdie) Tebbetts, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, today signed a new three-year contract believed to call for a salary of around $25,000.

Tebbetts, who piloted the Redlegs into fifth place in his major league managerial debut last year, was working under a two-year contract expiring this year. But it was torn up and a new one signed.

President Powel Crosley, Jr. of Cincinnati declined to name the salary figure but said "it very definitely was better for Birdie. He is the type of manager we need from the sample he showed us last year and I hope he'll be our manager as long as I am in baseball."

Tebbetts said when he went to Indianapolis as manager of the American Association club he figured he would still be working his way up three years from now.

"Now I hope I won't be working my way down in three years," he added.

Hundley And Devlin Unanimous Choices

RICHMOND, Va., March 7 (AP)—Rod Hundley of West Virginia, who led his team to the Southern Conference championship in the league's basketball tournament, and Corky Devlin of George Washington were the only unanimous choices for the all-tournament team.

Both Hundley and Devlin received the votes of all 29 press and radio reporters polled in balloting after the tourney finals.

George Washington's Joe Holup was named on all but one ballot, receiving 28 votes. Richmond's Walt Lysaght, with 23 votes, and Warren Mills, with 13, completed the first team.

Named to the second team were Lee Marshall of Washington and Lee, Frank Spadafore and Pete White of West Virginia, Darrell Floyd of Furman and John Mahoney of William and Mary.

Robinson Barred By Massachusetts

BOSTON, March 7 (INS) — The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today barred former world middleweight boxing champion Sugar Ray Robinson from ever again fighting in Massachusetts.

The action was taken as a result of his alleged "runout" Saturday night which forced cancellation of the Boston Garden fight show.

The boxing commission said it would not make a report to the NBA and would not recommend nation-wide suspension.

Floyd Is Voted Player Of Year

Southern Conference Honors Furman Star

RICHMOND, Va., March 7 (AP)—All-American Darrell Floyd of Furman was the "basketball player of the year" in the Southern Conference.

Floyd, whose 36.5-point-per-game scoring average topped the nation, was named for the honor today by the Southern Conference Sports Writers Assn. Balloting for the "player of the year" award was conducted here last weekend in conjunction with the conference basketball tournament.

Floyd will be presented the Mac Pitt trophy, newly named by the association in honor of the University of Richmond athletic director.

Others receiving votes for the "player of the year" award included Rod Hundley of West Virginia; Corky Devlin and Joe Holup of George Washington University; Warren Mills of Richmond and Johnny Mahoney of William and Mary.

Floyd pitched in 877 points in 24 games for Furman during the regular season. Both his total point production and his 36.5-point average were the highest in the nation for a major college performer.

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, March 7—(INS)—One of the perennial questions in racing circles is whether an owner has the right to run his horse "for experience" and not to win.

Andy Crevolin, owner of Determine, the 1954 Kentucky Derby winner, drew a suspension last summer for drawing attention during an interview to this common racing practice.

There is a euphonious name for that practice—it is called "qualifying." But no matter under what name it is done, it is just plain stealing.

Let us look into this matter a little. If our memory is not at fault, Man O' War was an odds-on choice in every race he ever ran.

The late Sam Riddle, who owned the champion, was an honest man. But let's suppose he was a crook. He could have let the horse run several times for "education" or "qualifying" or any other name you care to call a phony race.

After the great champion had been beaten a few times, the price against him naturally would have mounted, maybe to 10 to 1. Then Riddle could have sent in a big bet and won a bundle.

A national magazine (Sports Illustrated) posed the question to a number of people closely associated with racing and got some interesting answers.

One racing editor, answering the query, said: "Qualifying a horse is a necessary evil. All owners do it. There is no other way a green colt can learn to run in competition."

He was wrong on every count. It is not a "necessary evil" any more than any other evil is necessary. All owners do not do it. And there are other ways a green colt can learn to run honestly.

Our colleague Bill Corum, who also is president of Churchill Downs, said truthfully that the practice has been an unwritten rule of racing for centuries, but, being honest, he frankly said he was against it.

If the general betting public were advised beforehand that a certain horse was merely running for the exercise and experience, no harm would be done, because nobody would bet on the horse.

But that never happens, and the poor two buck punters send in their dough, not knowing that the horse they bet on doesn't intend to won. On second thought, the horse might want to win but his owner doesn't.

Alf Vanderbilt, owner of Native Dancer, said a horse should be allowed to do his best every time he starts. But how many are?

There is an easy remedy for this situation. Simply run races for green horses with no betting.

The "qualifying" owners never tell anybody that their horse is running only for the end book. But, if they want to be honest, they could run them in such a try-out pace. When will that happen? Never, my friends, never. Because some owners always will have larceny in their hearts.

50 Homers For Baker?

TRAPPE, Md. (AP)—Frank (Home Run) Baker, new member of the Hall of Fame, believes he could have hit 50 homers a season if the lively ball were in use in his time.

"I hit 12 homers for the Athletics in 1913," reports Baker. "In that year I hit the right field fence at Shibe Park at least 38 times. You've just got to figure those long hits as homers with the lively ball."

Chief Stopped Bout Set Ring Precedent

Fisher Testimonial Girl Averages 18.8

By C. V. BURNS

OSCAR A. EYERMAN, former Cumberland chief of police, for whom final rites will be held today, was one of Cumberland's best boxing fans of yesteryear.

Before Chief Eyerman left recently for the Pacific Coast to visit his son, we had a long talk with him about some of the old shows staged here and he got quite a chuckle when we recalled the time he jumped into the ring, stopped a bout and declared the boxer, who had claimed a foul, the winner.

It was 33 years ago that the Chief set a precedent in the boxing game when he climbed into the ring at the Liberty Theater and stopped the main bout of the Queen City A. C. card while "Red" Mack, of Albany, N. Y., was on the floor claiming a foul at the hands of Frankie Rice, of Baltimore.

Referee Chris Himmler refused to allow Mack's claim as he slipped to the floor holding his groin and had tolled off the count of nine in the fourth round when Chief Eyerman came through the ropes, lifted Mack to his feet, and hoisted the boxer's hand in the air signifying him winner on a foul.

Bedlam broke loose at the Chief's action. The fans were on their feet yelling and Mack dropped after Jimmy Betts, his manager, had set up a howl earlier in the round, claiming that Rice was hitting low.

James K. Ford, representative of the boxing commission, came into the ring and questioned the Chief's authority to stop the bout and a discussion between officials and managers waged ten minutes with the fans joining in the general melee.

An examination of Mack by Dr. Edward Harris failed to show any signs of injury and no apparent damage had been done the protector he wore, although there was evidence of bruises. Many fans upheld the action of the Chief and declared Rice had landed at least five foul blows.

The fight was continued and a draw verdict given at the end of 12 rounds. Rice was warned about hitting low and he did little fighting after the fourth round.

There had been an epidemic of fouling in fights all over the country in those days and Chief Eyerman decided to do something about it since several bad shows already had been foisted on the local public.

"It didn't look good to me so I decided to stop the affair," Eyerman told the writer.

Sammy Harris was the manager of Rice and George Chaney, who had lost five fights via fouls to Johnny Dundee, Frankie Britt, Danny Kramer, Harry "Kid" Brown and Ted Marchant. Rice lost on a foul to Bobby Garcia in Baltimore after his bout here.

Eyerman, who served as police chief here 30 years, seldom missed a fistic show and was a keen judge of boxing. He died last week in Los Angeles. The Chief was 74.

BRUCE M. FISHER, the one-time Ferndale High and Bedford High School grid and cage mentor, will be honored at a testimonial dinner in Johnstown, April 30, in recognition of his completion of 30 years of high school coaching.

Over 500 tickets have been sold for the affair to be held at the Fort Stanwix Hotel. Added features will be a floor show and dance.

Fisher, now coach at Penn High near Verona, Pa., was at Ferndale High from 1925 to 1944 and at Bedford from 1944 through 1945. His 1945 grid team at Bedford posted a 10-0 record and yielded only six points. And that touchdown was scored by Ferndale.

Bruce was born in Monroe Township in Bedford county where he still owns a farm and spends his vacations there.

COACH Pauline Hamilton of Valley High School reports that Mary Dorothy Kirkwood has scored 207 points in eleven games for an 18.8 average this season.

Miss Kirkwood has scored 88 field goals and she turned in an exceptionally good foul shooting average of .721, sinking 31 of 43 free throws.

Elsie Coburn and Shelva Wilson, her running mates, tallied 143 and 140 points, respectively.

MARY ANN DOWNEY, the Baltimore golf star, who holds two legs on the Old Export Bowl, donated to the annual winners in the Cumberland Country Club's Invitation Tournaments, finished as runner-up in the South Atlantic amateur tourney at Ormond Beach, Fla., losing out in the finals to Pat Lesser, of Seattle, 3 and 2.

WE LIKE the statement credited to Ed Macauley, veteran center of the Boston Celtics of the NBA, who plans to retire at the end of the season to go into radio and television.

Macauley said:

"I have reached the 'metallic' age in basketball. There's silver in my hair, gold in my teeth and lead in my feet."

NINE DAYS before his death, Albert K. "Rosey" Rowswell, the Pittsburgh Pirates' broadcaster, poet and after-dinner speaker, made out his will.

He left $10,000 to each of his sons, William and A. K., Jr. His widow receives the remainder of the estate, including the Fox Chapel property and all rights and royalties from songs and poems he produced.

OSCAR A. EYERMAN
As Young Police Chief

DUSTY RHODES, the Giants' hitting star in the 1954 World Series, came up with a gem the other day when he was asked why the Pirates gave the Giants so much trouble.

He answered:

"Guess it was 'cause they didn't have no place to go 'cept home and they're up there kinda looseygoosey. When a team gets looseygoosey, it's hard to beat!"

Delaney Wins New York Bout

Ohioan Decisions Wilson At St. Nick

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Lefty Ronnie Delaney had his troubles, but he punched out a 10-round decision over Sugar Al Wilson, a rough customer from New York, tonight in the feature bout at St. Nicholas Arena. Delaney weighed 149½, Wilson 147.

Delaney, a 3-1 favorite, started like a house afire when he drew blood from Wilson's nose in the first round. Wilson couldn't solve his left-handed style.

But with it all, Wilson carried the fight in the middle rounds and until Delaney decided to take the offensive in the seventh round, Wilson was giving the 25-year-old Akron, Ohio, battler a run for his money.

Race Card Canceled Due To Frozen Track

LINCOLN, R.I., March 7 (AP) — The race card at Lincoln Downs was canceled today and tomorrow after officials at the horse track discovered the racing strip frozen solid.

The sudden drop in temperature after a weekend of snow and rain solidified the track which, oddly, was fast Saturday, opening day.

Saturday there were two or three inches of soft, if somewhat sloppy, earth atop the otherwise frozen oval.

After a later inspection of the track, officials called off today's nine-race program and there will be no racing tomorrow.

Hartman Gets 33 As Battlers Win

Alderson-Broaddus Tops Minot, 100-72

KANSAS CITY, March 7 (AP) — Alderson-Broaddus of Philippi, W. Va., got off to a fat lead today and then coasted to 100-72 victory over the Minot, N. D., Teachers in the opening game of the National Intercollegiate (NAIA) Basketball Tournament today.

The West Virginians hustled to a 14-0 lead in the first five minutes and were in front 20-2 with six minutes left in the period. A brief Minot rally cut Alderson-Broaddus' halftime advantage to 44-36.

Carl Hartman, 5-11 forward, who came into the tournament with a total of 1,076 points for 34 games, led the victors with 33 points.

The fifth-seeded Gustavus Adolphus Gusties of St. Peter, Minn., got a battle from the Wayland Pioneers of Plain View, Tex., only the first 13 minutes in passing their first round test, 78-58, in the second afternoon game.

Gil Turner Stops Miceli In Eighth

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 7 (AP) —Gil Turner, Philadelphia middleweight contender, scored a technical knockout over Joe Miceli of New York in 44 seconds of the eighth round of a scheduled 10 at the Eastern Parkway Arena tonight. Turner weighed 155½, Miceli 147.

Referee Petey Scalzo stopped the bout as Turner kept pegging away at Miceli's left eye, which was cut about the brow and almost closed.

It was the second straight knockout victory for Turner over Miceli. In their previous meeting in Philadelphia two years ago Gil stopped the New Yorker in the sixth round.

Miceli's eye was cut in the fourth round and the wound bled profusely. Dr. Samuel Swetnick, commission medico, examined the wound at the end of the sixth, but permitted the bout to continue. There were no knockdowns.

Tebbetts Given Three-Year Pact

Previous Contract Expires This Year

TAMPA, Fla., March 7 (AP) — George (Birdie) Tebbetts, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, today signed a new three-year contract believed to call for a salary of around $25,000.

Tebbetts, who piloted the Redlegs into fifth place in his major league managerial debut last year, was working under a two-year contract expiring this year. But it was torn up and a new one signed.

President Powel Crosley, Jr. of Cincinnati declined to name the salary figure but said "it very definitely was better for Birdie. He is the type of manager we need from the sample he showed us last year and I hope he'll be our manager as long as I am in baseball."

Tebbetts said when he went to Indianapolis as manager of the American Association club he figured he would still be working his way up three years from now.

"Now I hope I won't be working my way down in three years," he added.

Hundley And Devlin Unanimous Choices

RICHMOND, Va., March 7 (AP)—Rod Hundley of West Virginia, who led his team to the Southern Conference championship in the league's basketball tournament, and Corky Devlin of George Washington were the only unanimous choices for the all-tournament team.

Both Hundley and Devlin received the votes of all 29 press and radio reporters polled in balloting after the tourney finals.

George Washington's Joe Holup was named on all but one ballot, receiving 28 votes. Richmond's Walt Lysaght, with 23 votes, and Warren Mills, with 13, completed the first team.

Named to the second team were Lee Marshall of Washington and Lee, Frank Spadafore and Pete White of West Virginia, Darrell Floyd of Furman and John Mahoney of William and Mary.

Robinson Barred By Massachusetts

BOSTON, March 7 (INS) — The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today barred former world middleweight boxing champion Sugar Ray Robinson from ever again fighting in Massachusetts.

The action was taken as a result of his alleged "runout" Saturday night which forced cancellation of the Boston Garden fight show.

The boxing commission said it would not make a report to the NBA and would not recommend nation-wide suspension.

Floyd Is Voted Player Of Year

Southern Conference Honors Furman Star

RICHMOND, Va., March 7 (AP)—All-American Darrell Floyd of Furman was the "basketball player of the year" in the Southern Conference.

Floyd, whose 36.5-point-per-game scoring average topped the nation, was named for the honor today by the Southern Conference Sports Writers Assn. Balloting for the "player of the year" award was conducted here last weekend in conjunction with the conference basketball tournament.

Floyd will be presented the Mac Pitt trophy, newly named by the association in honor of the University of Richmond athletic director.

Others receiving votes for the "player of the year" award included Rod Hundley of West Virginia; Corky Devlin and Joe Holup of George Washington University; Warren Mills of Richmond and Johnny Mahoney of William and Mary.

Floyd pitched in 877 points in 24 games for Furman during the regular season. Both his total point production and his 36.5-point average were the highest in the nation for a major college performer.

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, March 7—(INS)—One of the perennial questions in racing circles is whether an owner has the right to run his horse "for experience" and not to win.

Andy Crevolin, owner of Determine, the 1954 Kentucky Derby winner, drew a suspension last summer for drawing attention during an interview to this common racing practice.

There is a euphonious name for that practice—it is called "qualifying." But no matter under what name it is done, it is just plain stealing.

Let us look into this matter a little. If our memory is not at fault, Man O' War was an odds-on choice in every race he ever ran.

The late Sam Riddle, who owned the champion, was an honest man. But let's suppose he was a crook. He could have let the horse run several times for "education" or "qualifying" or any other name you care to call a phony race.

After the great champion had been beaten a few times, the price against him naturally would have mounted, maybe to 10 to 1. Then Riddle could have sent in a big bet and won a bundle.

A national magazine (Sports Illustrated) posed the question to a number of people closely associated with racing and got some interesting answers.

One racing editor, answering the query, said: "Qualifying a horse is a necessary evil. All owners do it. There is no other way a green colt can learn to run in competition."

He was wrong on every count. It is not a "necessary evil" any more than any other evil is necessary. All owners do not do it. And there are other ways a green colt can learn to run honestly.

Our colleague Bill Corum, who also is president of Churchill Downs, said truthfully that the practice has been an unwritten rule of racing for centuries, but, being honest, he frankly said he was against it.

If the general betting public were advised beforehand that a certain horse was merely running for the exercise and experience, no harm would be done, because nobody would bet on the horse.

But that never happens, and the poor two buck punters send in their dough, not knowing that the horse they bet on doesn't intend to won. On second thought, the horse might want to win but his owner doesn't.

Alf Vanderbilt, owner of Native Dancer, said a horse should be allowed to do his best every time he starts. But how many are?

There is an easy remedy for this situation. Simply run races for green horses with no betting.

The "qualifying" owners never tell anybody that their horse is running only for the end book. But, if they want to be honest, they could run them in such a try-out pace. When will that happen? Never, my friends, never. Because some owners always will have larceny in their hearts.

Baker And Mederos To Clash March 25

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Julio Mederos, the Cuban who knocked out Roland LaStarza last Wednesday in Miami, was substituted for Harold Johnson today as Bob Baker's foe in the 10-round feature fight at Madison Square Garden March 25.

Johnson, from Philadelphia, had to pull out of the fight because of influenza. Baker is the third-ranked heavyweight from Pittsburgh. Mederos is from Havana.

Gola To Face Hundley In NCAA Cage Battle At Garden

West Virginia Plays LaSalle In Third Game

Williams-Canisius, Duke-Villanova On Same Card Today

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — Terrific Tom Gola and "Hot Rod" Hundley, two of the season's most colorful basketball players, will face each other for the first time tomorrow night when LaSalle opens defense of its National Collegiate basketball championship against West Virginia.

This game tops a first round triple-header in Madison Square Garden which also brings together Williams, the New England champion, and Canisius, and Duke, Atlantic Coast Conference runner-up and Villanova.

The three winners will advance to the NCAA regional tournament at Philadelphia next Friday and Saturday. The fourth team there will be the still-to-be decided champion of the Ivy League.

Most Publicized Stars

The clash between LaSalle's Gola and West Virginia's Hundley brings together two of the season's most prolific scorers and most publicized players.

Gola, playing his fourth and final season for the LaSalle Explorers, is the kind of player coaches dream about. Hundley sometimes gives them nightmares.

In addition to scoring more than 2,000 points in four years, 635 this season, Gola is a superb defensive player, a great rebounder and a fine play-maker. One of the few complaints about him is that he doesn't shoot often enough. He was chosen most valuable player in last year's NCAA tournament, scoring 114 points as LaSalle whipped Fordham, North Carolina State, Navy, Penn State and Bradley to win the championship.

Sophomore Hundley, who is liable to shoot with his back to the goal, chin himself on the basket or try a hook shot on a free throw, was serious enough to score 610 points in his first varsity season for West Virginia. In leading the Mountaineers to victory in the Southern Conference Tournament last week, he racked up 84 points, missing Dick Groat's tournament record by one.

Williams Plays Canisius

Williams, a newcomer to post-season basketball, has a good record and good height to send against Canisius.

Duke, which got the NCAA nomination because the Atlantic Coast champion, North Carolina State, is ineligible, has a veteran team paced by Ronnie Mayer, who has averaged 22 points this season. The Blue Devils have hit more than 100 points in five of their 27 games. Villanova's record this season has been spotty, but the Wildcats beat North Carolina State twice.

Pegeen Scores In Gulfstream Feature Race

Outsmart Is Third, 19,691 See Program

MIAMI, Fla., March 7 (AP)—Duntreath Farm's Pegeen, a filly that had been tested against the best of her division, finally found her stride as she tiptoed to victory in the Lady Broadcast Purse at Gulfstream Park today before a sweltering crowd of 19,691.

The daughter of Shannon 2nd-Nellie's Last broke in front and none of the five other fillies and mares ever got close to her in the event. She finished a length and a half before M. E. Field's Betsy T, a recent arrival from New Orleans, and completed a double for Jockey Kenneth Church. On the weekend, Church rode Sea O Erin to victory in the rich New Orleans Handicap at the Fairgrounds.

Outsmart, a castoff from the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt Stable, carried the silks of J. Perett and G. Mavros in the Lady Broadcast for the first time. She tired badly and finished third, 2½ lengths behind Betsy T. She was the favorite at $1.65 to $1. Fourth was Pampas Beauty. Will Be There and Divine Actress completed the field.

Pegeen, under 111 pounds, stepped over the six furlongs in 1:11 2/5 and paid $11.10, $6.00 and $3.20. Betsy T, handled by Ronald Baldwin, went off at $8.70 and $3.00. Outsmart, piloted by William McKinley Cook, paid $2.70.

Church got his first winner of the day in the fifth on Squire Wilson, $11.70. He was the leading rider at Gulfstream Park last winter.

Jett Flame, warmly backed at $6.80, led all the way in the mile and a sixteenth seventh, reaching the wire a length and a half in advance of Teanecker. Charles A was a distant third, as seven other 3 and 4-year-olds also ran. The clocking was 1:45 2/5.

Belair Stud's Nashua, the Flamingo winner, was on the track before the card opened, and galloped before the crowds in a further effort to accustom him to noise and crowds. Passing the stands, he was unperturbed by the whirling, booming sounds of a helicopter that had just landed in the infield from Miami Beach. Nashua is getting ready for the $100,000 Florida Derby on March 26.

Gola To Face Hundley In NCAA Cage Battle At Garden

West Virginia Plays LaSalle In Third Game

Williams-Canisius, Duke-Villanova On Same Card Today

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP) — Terrific Tom Gola and "Hot Rod" Hundley, two of the season's most colorful basketball players, will face each other for the first time tomorrow night when LaSalle opens defense of its National Collegiate basketball championship against West Virginia.

This game tops a first round triple-header in Madison Square Garden which also brings together Williams, the New England champion, and Canisius, and Duke, Atlantic Coast Conference runner-up and Villanova.

The three winners will advance to the NCAA regional tournament at Philadelphia next Friday and Saturday. The fourth team there will be the still-to-be decided champion of the Ivy League.

Most Publicized Stars

The clash between LaSalle's Gola and West Virginia's Hundley brings together two of the season's most prolific scorers and most publicized players.

Gola, playing his fourth and final season for the LaSalle Explorers, is the kind of player coaches dream about. Hundley sometimes gives them nightmares.

In addition to scoring more than 2,000 points in four years, 635 this season, Gola is a superb defensive player, a great rebounder and a fine play-maker. One of the few complaints about him is that he doesn't shoot often enough. He was chosen most valuable player in last year's NCAA tournament, scoring 114 points as LaSalle whipped Fordham, North Carolina State, Navy, Penn State and Bradley to win the championship.

Sophomore Hundley, who is liable to shoot with his back to the goal, chin himself on the basket or try a hook shot on a free throw, was serious enough to score 610 points in his first varsity season for West Virginia. In leading the Mountaineers to victory in the Southern Conference Tournament last week, he racked up 84 points, missing Dick Groat's tournament record by one.

Williams Plays Canisius

Williams, a newcomer to postseason basketball, has a good record and good height to send against Canisius.

Duke, which got the NCAA nomination because the Atlantic Coast champion, North Carolina State, is ineligible, has a veteran team paced by Ronnie Mayer, who has averaged 22 points this season. The Blue Devils have hit more than 100 points in five of their 27 games. Villanova's record this season has been spotty, but the Wildcats beat North Carolina State twice.

ELKS WIN JUNIOR HIGH TOURNEY—Elk Garden High School won the recent junior high school basketball tournament at Keyser by defeating Piedmont in the finals, 38-37. It was the second straight year that the Elks copped the tourney. Parker C. Black, principal of Keyser High School, is shown presenting the championship trophy to Captain Bobby Milavec. Those in the photo, left to right, are: FRONT ROW — Tommy O'Connor, assistant coach; Leroy Smith, Capt. Bobby Milavec, Parker C. Black and Paul Kalbaugh, head coach. BACK ROW—James Helmick, Dick Hanlin, Danny Milavec, Ronnie Bray, Ronnie Stullenbarger, Paul Tasker, Michael Hershberger and Ronnie Coleman.

W. Va. Democrats Working Toward Balanced Budget

Teacher Pay Raise In Revenue Program

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Further items in the House Democratic leadership's package revenue program for balancing the budget and giving school teachers a raise were disclosed in amendments offered today.

Here are the main items which heretofore have not been formally brought forth in the form of legislation:

1. Repeal of the soft drinks tax.

2. Earmarking three million dollars a year of gross sales tax income to replace the pop tax as a source of money for development of the West Virginia University Medical and Dental School.

3. Increasing the gross sales tax rate on manufacturers from .3 to .4 per cent.

4. Removing the present $50 exemption allowed in the gross sales tax law.

Those items were included in a sheaf of amendments which Majority Leader Bowles sought to have written into a pair of Senate-passed bills to amend the gross sales tax statutes.

Meanwhile, after routine work on a calendar of minor legislation, the Senate called a recess until tonight with the explanation by President Bean that it was hoped to have the $91,360,000 budget bill on the floor by that time.

The Senate Finance Committee worked feverishly during the weekend to get its version of the appropriations measure in shape. The House Finance Committee has not indicated when its version would be ready.

The Senate passed finally a resolution to submit to the voters next year a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for a state bonus to veterans of the Korean War.

The bills which were the subject of the amendments offered in the House today would, as previously passed by the Senate, simply have reduced from 10 to 5 per cent the exemptions now allowed under the gross sales and related transportation privilege tax statutes.

Placed formally before the House for the first time, in addition to the new amendments, were other changes in the bills which the House Finance Committee had approved previously. They would:

1. Cut out the 10 per cent exemptions altogether.

2. Increase the gross sales tax rate on wholesalers from .15 to .3 per cent.

3. Extend the present 30 per cent surtax to retailers, water companies, contractors, and services, all now exluded.

Altogether, the proposed changes in the gross sales tax law add up to an estimated $13,100,000 in additional yearly income from that source, already the state's biggest revenue producer.

Deduction of three million which would be earmarked for the medical school would mean a net increase of $10,100,000.

The bills were held over at amendment stage until tomorrow to permit printing of the long list of amendments in the House Journal.

Also held over at amendment stage were two other items in the program by which the House leadership hopes to offset a $6,700,000 deficit in the original budget bill and raise enough additional money to give teachers a raise. The other items would:

Extend the present cigarette tax to smoking tobacco, cigars and snuff to raise income by an estimated half million dollars a year.

Extend the consumers' sales tax to gas, electric, water, telephone, telegraph and cable utilities to boost income by an estimated $2,800,000.

Mineral County Teachers Group Defends Board

Praise Idleman And McGee; Oppose Any School Probe

KEYSER—A group of Mineral County (W. Va.) teachers yesterday issued a statement defending the ethics of the county's Board of Education which were attacked Friday by a group of Mineral County teachers and residents.

In issuing the statement, the Mineral County Elementary Principals Association said it wanted to make it clear that it did not subscribe to the attack which was made by what it termed a "minority group of high school principals and some teachers and residents of Piedmont."

The statement, in part, follows:

"We believe that Mineral county has made great strides in the field of public education during the last 14 years under the able administration of H. L. Idleman and the Board of Education, even though being greatly hampered by insufficient funds available for school financing.

"It is our considered opinion that in the recent appointment of S. T. McGee as assistant superintendent, the most able and best qualified school man in Mineral county was selected. McGee has been granted a B.A. degree from Shepherd College, an M.A. degree from West Virginia University and has qualified under the West Virginia Department of Education for a superintendent's certificate, a high school principal's certificate and an elementary principal's certificate.

"He (McGee) has taught in Mineral county 25 years, the last ten of which he has served as principal of the second largest elementary school in West Virginia. That he is an efficient administrator is evidenced by the fact that Keyser Elementary School under his supervision was granted a model rating by the State Department of Education.

"This rating was earned despite the fact that the physical plant of his school was outmoded and outdated, and we find no fault in the county Board of Education appointment of McGee as assistant superintendent, nor his qualifications to fill that position.

"We heartily give him and the Board of Education a vote of confidence and feel that an investigation of the county schools would be unnecessary and unethical."

The investigation of the county schools was suggested following last Friday's meeting in a statement by the Board of Education which said it would "welcome a visit from the tenure ethics committee of the West Virginia Education Association to conduct an investigation of the existing conditions in the country."

McGee served as principal of Elk Garden Elementary School and retained the principalship when the elementary and high schools there were combined. He served there from 1939 to 1945, at which time he assumed the principalship of Keyser Elementary School.

Today's statement was signed by E. M. Welshonce, Fountain School; Harold Carvey, New Creek School; Elizabeth Duckwyler, Lincoln School; Prema Lipscomb, Beryl School; Mernie Judy, Burlington School; Charles Wimer, Wiley Ford School; Madalyn Bazzle, Limestone School.

Homer May, Short Gap School; Charles Ford, Pattersons Creek School; John T. Edwards, Howard School; Marvin Reel, Antioch School, and William Marker, assistant principal of Fort Ashby School.

W. Va. Democrats Working Toward Balanced Budget

Teacher Pay Raise In Revenue Program

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Further items in the House Democratic leadership's package revenue program for balancing the budget and giving school teachers a raise were disclosed in amendments offered today.

Here are the main items which heretofore have not been formally brought forth in the form of legislation:

1. Repeal of the soft drinks tax.

2. Earmarking three million dollars a year of gross sales tax income to replace the pop tax as a source of money for development of the West Virginia University Medical and Dental School.

3. Increasing the gross sales tax rate on manufacturers from .3 to .4 per cent.

4. Removing the present $50 exemption allowed in the gross sales tax law.

Those items were included in a sheaf of amendments which Majority Leader Bowles sought to have written into a pair of Senate-passed bills to amend the gross sales tax statutes.

Meanwhile, after routine work on a calendar of minor legislation, the Senate called a recess until tonight with the explanation by President Bean that it was hoped to have the $91,360,000 budget bill on the floor by that time.

The Senate Finance Committee worked feverishly during the weekend to get its version of the appropriations measure in shape. The House Finance Committee has not indicated when its version would be ready.

The Senate passed finally a resolution to submit to the voters next year a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for a state bonus to veterans of the Korean War.

The bills which were the subject of the amendments offered in the House today would, as previously passed by the Senate, simply have reduced from 10 to 5 per cent the exemptions now allowed under the gross sales and related transportation privilege tax statutes.

Placed formally before the House for the first time, in addition to the new amendments, were other changes in the bills which the House Finance Committee had approved previously. They would:

1. Cut out the 10 per cent exemptions altogether.

2. Increase the gross sales tax rate on wholesalers from .15 to .3 per cent.

3. Extend the present 30 per cent surtax to retailers, water companies, contractors, and services, all now exluded.

Altogether, the proposed changes in the gross sales tax law add up to an estimated $13,100,000 in additional yearly income from that source, already the state's biggest revenue producer.

Deduction of three million which would be earmarked for the medical school would mean a net increase of $10,100,000.

The bills were held over at amendment stage until tomorrow to permit printing of the long list of amendments in the House Journal.

Also held over at amendment stage were two other items in the program by which the House leadership hopes to offset a $6,700,000 deficit in the original budget bill and raise enough additional money to give teachers a raise. The other items would:

Extend the present cigarette tax to smoking tobacco, cigars and snuff to raise income by an estimated half million dollars a year.

Extend the consumers' sales tax to gas, electric, water, telephone, telegraph and cable utilities to boost income by an estimated $2,800,000.

Mineral County Teachers Group Defends Board

Praise Idleman And McGee; Oppose Any School Probe

KEYSER—A group of Mineral County (W. Va.) teachers yesterday issued a statement defending the ethics of the county's Board of Education which were attacked Friday by a group of Mineral County teachers and residents.

In issuing the statement, the Mineral County Elementary Principals Association said it wanted to make it clear that it did not subscribe to the attack which was made by what it termed a "minority group of high school principals and some teachers and residents of Piedmont."

The statement, in part, follows:

"We believe that Mineral county has made great strides in the field of public education during the last 14 years under the able administration of H. L. Idleman and the Board of Education, even though being greatly hampered by insufficient funds available for school financing.

"It is our considered opinion that in the recent appointment of S. T. McGee as assistant superintendent, the most able and best qualified school man in Mineral county was selected. McGee has been granted a B.A. degree from Shepherd College, an M.A. degree from West Virginia University and has qualified under the West Virginia Department of Education for a superintendent's certificate, a high school principal's certificate and an elementary principal's certificate.

"He (McGee) has taught in Mineral county 25 years, the last ten of which he has served as principal of the second largest elementary school in West Virginia. That he is an efficient administrator is evidenced by the fact that Keyser Elementary School under his supervision was granted a model rating by the State Department of Education.

"This rating was earned despite the fact that the physical plant of his school was outmoded and outdated, and we find no fault in the county Board of Education appointment of McGee as assistant superintendent, nor his qualifications to fill that position.

"We heartily give him and the Board of Education a vote of confidence and feel that an investigation of the county schools would be unnecessary and unethical."

The investigation of the county schools was suggested following last Friday's meeting in a statement by the Board of Education which said it would "welcome a visit from the tenure ethics committee of the West Virginia Education Association to conduct an investigation of the existing conditions in the country."

McGee served as principal of Elk Garden Elementary School and retained the principalship when the elementary and high schools there were combined. He served there from 1939 to 1945, at which time he assumed the principalship of Keyser Elementary School.

Today's statement was signed by E. M. Welshonce, Fountain School; Harold Carvey, New Creek School; Elizabeth Duckwyler, Lincoln School; Prema Lipscomb, Beryl School; Mernie Judy, Burlington School; Charles Wimer, Wiley Ford School; Madalyn Bazzle, Limestone School.

Homer May, Short Gap School; Charles Ford, Pattersons Creek School; John ". Edwards, Howard School; Marvin Reel, Antioch School, and William Marker, assistant principal of Fort Ashby School.

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

THE NEGLECTED SAFETY PLAY

South dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	♠ K Q 10 5 ♥ A 4 3 ♦ 8 3 2 ♣ K 7 3
♠ 7 3 ♥ K J 9 7 ♦ Q 6 ♣ Q J 10 9 4	N W E S	♠ 6 2 ♥ Q 10 8 ♦ 10 9 7 4 ♣ A 8 6 2
	♠ A J 9 8 4 ♥ 6 5 2 ♦ A K J 5 ♣ 5

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Every West led the club queen, and the suit was continued whether or not the king was played from dummy. Each declarer ruffed, drew trumps—and then eight of the nine tried for the diamond finesse. The loss of that finesse meant the loss of the contract. True, there was still a chance for the hand—the diamond suit might have broken 3-3, so that South's fourth diamond would have provided a heart discard from dummy, but this unlikely break did not materialize, and these declarers received only 3½ match-points each on the board.

Only one South felt that it was worthwhile to try to insure the contract, even at the possible cost of an overtrick (which was improbable in any case). This declarer, after drawing trumps, laid down the ace and king of diamonds, intending to cross to dummy (if the diamond queen hadn't dropped) and lead the third diamond toward the J-5. Then, if East had the queen, the diamond jack would provide for a heart discard from dummy.

Obviously, this South was well rewarded by the fall of the queen—and by getting a top on the board. The fact that diamonds didn't break was relatively inconsequential—he could afford to give up two hearts since he had avoided the diamond loser.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

First master the components of a graceful walk . . . then work to establish rhythm.

A topflight woman journalist told me after receiving a citation for one of her columns that she was "all fluttery inside" — and not so much from surprise or pleasure (although she was thrilled) as from fright. She hated to walk the length of a ballroom to receive her award, while hundreds watched, for fear she would trip!

I assured the writer that her plight was not unusual. Many of the Powers Girls admit to stage fright after their first one or two fashion shows. It is difficult to appear nonchalant when you are the focal point of attention. Still you can learn to walk gracefully, no matter what the circumstances.

Certainly you have practiced a glide-walk, if you put these columns to work. Do you remember its components? First is erect posture. Second is your step; with toes pointing straight ahead, you roll the weight from the heel to the ball of each foot.

Keep the arm relaxed and swinging from the shoulder joint in this manner: no further backward or forward than the length of your step; close enough to the body to brush the skirt lightly in passing; coordinated with the foot movements — right arm forward when the left foot is forward, and vice versa.

Other than in the legs, little or no movement should occur in the body. Be on the alert for the wiggling hip, swaying shoulder, or wagging head. Should you detect these faults, eliminate them by working to gain greater control of your arm swing and weight transfer.

That's about all there is to the attractive glide walk except practice — in stocking feet and in heels of all heights. Once you have mastered the rudiments, work for rhythm. This depends on how your feet touch the ground. Perfect rhythm is sustained when the feet fall with an equal amount of force and at an equal rate of speed.

This routine will help to banish any error of pace, gait, of rhythm: Measure off a hard-surfaced floor with strings placed at 16 to 18 intervals — possibly more or less, depending on the length of your foot. (The distance between your steps should be the same as your foot measurement.) For ten minutes each day, walk this course, toeing a string marker with each step. Hum a waltz, then a foxtrot, and control your footfalls so they tick off the beat with the same degree of pianissimo. To decrease or increase your speed, simply change your tempo, not the length of your step.

Tomorrow—Your legs—and the stockings that sheathe them.

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

THE NEGLECTED SAFETY PLAY

PROOF that safety plays are overlooked even by good players was supplied by the following hand in a match-point duplicate game.

South dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Every West led the club queen, and the suit was continued whether or not the king was played from dummy. Each declarer ruffed, drew trumps—and then eight of the nine tried for the diamond finesse. The loss of that finesse meant the loss of the contract. True, there was still a chance for the hand—the diamond suit might have broken 3-3, so that South's fourth diamond would have provided a heart discard from dummy, but this unlikely break did not materialize, and these declarers received only 3½ match-points each on the board.

Only one South felt that it was worthwhile to try to insure the contract, even at the possible cost of an overtrick (which was improbable in any case). This declarer, after drawing trumps, laid down the ace and king of diamonds, intending to cross to dummy (if the diamond queen hadn't dropped) and lead the third diamond toward the J-5. Then, if East had the queen, the diamond jack would provide for a heart discard from dummy.

Obviously, this South was well rewarded by the fall of the queen—and by getting a top on the board. The fact that diamonds didn't break was relatively inconsequential—he could afford to give up two hearts since he had avoided the diamond loser.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

First master the components of a graceful walk . . . then work to establish rhythm.

A topflight woman journalist told me after receiving a citation for one of her columns that she was "all fluttery inside" — and not so much from surprise or pleasure (although she was thrilled) as from fright. She hated to walk the length of a ballroom to receive her award, while hundreds watched, for fear she would trip!

I assured the writer that her plight was not unusual. Many of the Powers Girls admit to stage fright after their first one or two fashion shows. It is difficult to appear nonchalant when you are the focal point of attention. Still you can learn to walk gracefully, no matter what the circumstances.

Certainly you have practiced a glide-walk, if you put these columns to wor'.. Do you remember its components? First is erect posture. Second is your step; with toes pointing straight ahead, you roll the weight from the heel to the ball of each foot.

Keep the arm relaxed and swinging from the shoulder joint in this manner: no further backward or forward than the length of your step; close enough to the body to brush the skirt lightly in passing; coordinated with the foot movements — right arm forward when the left foot is forward, and vice versa.

Other than in the legs, little or no movement should occur in the body. Be on the alert for the wiggling hip, swaying shoulder, or wagging head. Should you detect these faults, eliminate them by working to gain greater control of your arm swing and weight transfer.

That's about all there is to the attractive glide walk except practice — in stocking feet and in heels of all heights. Once you have mastered the rudiments, work for rhythm. This depends on how your feet touch the ground. Perfect rhythm is sustained when the feet fall with an equal amount of force and at an equal rate of speed.

This routine will help to banish any error of pace, gait, of rhythm: Measure off a hard-surfaced floor with strings placed at 16 to 18 intervals — possibly more or less, depending on the length of your foot. (The distance between your steps should be the same as your foot measurement.) For ten minutes each day, walk this course, toeing a string marker with each step. Hum a waltz, then a foxtrot, and control your footfalls so they tick of' the beat with the same degree of pianissimo. To decrease or increase your speed, simply change your tempo, not the length of your step.

Tomorrow—Your legs—and the stockings that sheathe them.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and neighbors, or those who assisted us in any way during our recent bereavement, the death of our son and brother Dale.
Mr. & Mrs. J. R. Kesecker & Family.

We wish to express thanks to the friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness and courtesy shown our sister Mrs. Eleanor (Conrad) Hiett during her illness and during her last hours. We especially wish to thank those who sent flowers and Rev. Arthur Vespa who was in charge of the services, also the pallbearers and those who attended and showed other kindnesses.
Her Sisters and Brothers:
Mrs. Reckley, Mrs. Jewell and Mrs. Robey, Otto and George Conrad.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Wm. Lashbaugh, who died suddenly, March 8, 1953.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye,
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best,
God grant you eternal rest.
Sadly missed by his wife, GRACE.
Children, KATHLEE, HELEN, BILLY, HAROLD.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles E. Harris who died March 7, 1954.
At twilight when twilight hour draws near,
And sunset flames the sky,
We think of you, dear husband
And father,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back,
Within our dreams to stay,
To know that you are resting,
When twilight ends the day.
Sadly missed by his wife and children.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and neighbors, or those who assisted us in any way during our recent bereavement, the death of our son and brother Dale.

Mr. & Mrs. J. R. Kesecker & Family.

We wish to express thanks to the friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness and courtesy shown our sister Mrs. Eleanor (Conrad) Hiett during her illness and during her last hours. We especially wish to thank those who sent flowers and Rev. Arthur Vespa who was in charge of the services, also the pallbearers and those who attended and showed other kindnesses.

Her Sisters and Brothers: Mrs. Reckley, Mrs. Jewell and Mrs. Robey, Otto and George Conrad.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Wm. Lashbaugh, who died suddenly, March 8, 1953.

We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died.
To think you could not say goodbye,
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best,
God grant you eternal rest.
Sadly missed by his wife, GRACE.
Children, KATHLEE, HELEN, BILLY, HAROLD.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles E. Harris who died March 7, 1954.

At twilight when twilight hour draws near,
And sunset flames the sky,
We think of you, dear husband
And father,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back,
Within our dreams to stay,
To know that you are resting,
When twilight ends the day.

Betty Jane Stevens vs. Robert Lee Stevens. No. 23,995 EQUITY in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the defendant.

The Bill states that they were married on September 1, 1948, in Frederick, Maryland, and that during the month of August, 1952, the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, without cause or reason, and declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months, is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff's conduct toward her husband has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach.

The Bill further states that there were three children born of said marriage; that the plaintiff has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than one year prior to the bringing of this action; that the defendant, so far as can be ascertained, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and the plaintiff asks for an Order of Publication against the defendant, and also for general relief.

It is thereupon this 25th day of February, 1955, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in equity, ordered that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once in each of four successive weeks on or before the 31st day of March, 1955, giving notice to said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, and warn him to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 16th day of April, 1955, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

Human Bones Found In Cave

FALLING WATERS, W. Va., March 7 (AP) — A score of cave probers and archeologists from the Pittsburgh area uncovered some human bones over the weekend and used a couple of dynamite charges to make their find.

The bones, along with a few artifacts, were found in a place formerly known as Jones Quarry Cave. It is located on a farm of Fred Cunningham in this eastern West Cirginia panhandle sectioo near Martinsburg.

This was the second trip to the cave by the Pittsburgh group, who included among their number Dr. Donald Dragoo, archeologist from the Carnegie Museum.

J. R. Dunn, engineering student at Carnegie Tech, said the cave hunters dynamited the surface of the ground and turned up several bones in an underground room.

Dunn said they've unearthed bones of six or seven persons, presumably those of Indians buried 400 to 500 years ago. Also found were pendants with holes in them and a gouging tool.

The bones and artifacts found over the weekend probably will be put on display in the Carnegie Museum, Dunn said.

Earlier findings were sent both to the museum and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, Dunn added.

Those who went on the foray this weekend included students from Carnegie Tech, University of Pittsburgh, scientists from the Carnegie Museum and some members of the Pittsburgh Grotto of the National Speleological Society.

Stock Market Falls Back After Five-Session Climb

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—The stock market declined today in a moderate manner after five straight advances.

Aircraft stocks were under some selling pressure and displayed the widest losses. The Senate Banking Committee, now making a study of the stock market, asked the Defense Department for information on companies heavily engaged in defense work.

Brokers felt that the selloff was a normal result of sustained strength in recent days.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell back 90 cents at $161.70. Last week the average advanced a total of $3.70 and closed at $162.60, highest level it had ever touched.

Today the industrial component of the average declined $1.80, railroads were down 40 cents and utilities remained unchanged.

There were 1,229 issues traded, the same as Friday, of which 375 advanced and 630 declined. Ninety stocks registered new highs and two went to new lows for 1954-55.

Libby, McNeill & Libby was the day's most active issue up ⅞ at 18⅞ on 44,300 shares. It was followed by Royal Dutch Petroleum up 2¾ at 78⅞, General Public Service up ⅜ at 5⅜, Pennsylvania Railroad up ⅛ at 28⅝, and Glenn Martin off 2⅛ at 36¾.

Betty Jane Stevens vs. Robert Lee Stevens. No. 23,995 EQUITY in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the defendant.

The Bill states that they were married on September 1, 1948, in Frederick, Maryland, and that during the month of August, 1952, the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, without cause or reason, and declared his intention to live with her no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months, is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff's conduct toward her husband has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach.

The Bill further states that there were three children born of said marriage; that the plaintiff has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than one year prior to the bringing of this action; that the defendant, so far as can be ascertained, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and the plaintiff asks for an Order of Publication against the defendant, and also for general relief.

It is thereupon this 25th day of February, 1955, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, sitting in equity, ordered that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once in each of four successive weeks on or before the 31st day of March, 1955, giving notice to said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, and warn him to appear in person or by solicitor on or before the 16th day of April, 1955, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

Human Bones Found In Cave

FALLING WATERS, W. Va., March 7 (AP) — A score of cave probers and archeologists from the Pittsburgh area uncovered some human bones over the weekend and used a couple of dynamite charges to make their find.

The bones, along with a few artifacts, were found in a place formerly known as Jones Quarry Cave. It is located on a farm of Fred Cunningham in this eastern West Cirginia panhandle sectioo near Martinsburg.

This was the second trip to the cave by the Pittsburgh group, who included among their number Dr. Donald Dragoo, archeologist from the Carnegie Museum.

J. R. Dunn, engineering student at Carnegie Tech, said the cave hunters dynamited the surface of the ground and turned up several bones in an underground room.

Dunn said they've unearthed bones of six or seven persons, presumably those of Indians buried 400 to 500 years ago. Also found were pendants with holes in them and a gouging tool.

The bones and artifacts found over the weekend probably will be put on display in the Carnegie Museum, Dunn said.

Earlier findings were sent both to the museum and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, Dunn added.

Those who went on the foray this weekend included students from Carnegie Tech, University of Pittsburgh, scientists from the Carnegie Museum and some members of the Pittsburgh Grotto of the National Speleological Society.

Travel Council Urges Route 40 Improvements

Senator Kimble Suggests Solution

ANNAPOLIS, March 7 (AP)—The Maryland Travel Council began a campaign today to speed up improvement of U.S. 40 between Cumberland and Hancock, which it said is costing the state millions of tourist dollars.

Letters from J. L. Towler with the council's authority were being circulated through the General Assembly asking backing for any bills the Allegany delegation might introduce pertaining to immediate improvement of the 28 miles of highway.

It said the U.S. 40 Assn. has asked the Allegany County delegation to take steps "to revise our present 12-year-plan, whereby we would get a new relocated road" on the stretch within the next four years.

The present plans it said calls for remodeling a part of the road and putting a third lane on the hazardous curves.

"Even if this betters the condition, the completion of it would take 12 years," the letter from the tourist promotion group said.

It said most people who come from the west would enter Maryland on Route 40 if the road were comparable to the competitive Pennsylvania Turnpike or U. S. 50 going through West Virginia and Virginia.

"At the present time 90 per cent of traffic is diverted to either the turnpike or U.S. 50," it said.

This short span is diverting traffic that would provide millions of dollars in gasoline tax alone, the letter said.

It also said millions would be spent in "our business places, and there again, the monies from the sales tax would also increase."

The Allegany delegates who were available for comment said no such legislation has been prepared.

Sen. Kimble (R-Allegany), minority floor leader, said a report is expected from the State Roads Commission within a week on a recommendation to shift funds in the county so the highway stretch could be taken care of immediately.

The way this would be done would be to delay other roads projects in Allegany which have been scheduled for the next few years and use the county's allotment for U.S. 40.

"I don't think there will be any need for legislation," Kimble said.

School Officials Briefed On Plan For Polio Shots

Go Ahead Contingent On Vaccine Approval

BALTIMORE, March 7 (AP) — If the Salk polio vaccine is given to Maryland youngsters this spring only doctors will give the shots, school and health officials were informed today.

About 60 county health officers and school superintendents met in Baltimore to hear plans for the immunization project.

If the final go-ahead is given, 150,000 first and second graders will get the shots. They're free but parents will have to make written requests.

About 400,000 youngsters across the nation already have been given the shots. Whether Maryland children get them depends on an evaluation of the limited nationwide test. Results should be known about April 1.

If success is indicated, the vaccine would then be approved by the National Institutes of Health and only then would this year's larger program be inaugurated. But the planning must be started now, Dr. Edward Davens of the Maryland Health Department noted. He is chief of the department's bureau of preventive medicine.

Today's meeting was jointly directed by Dr. Robert H. Riley, State Director of Health, and Dr. Thomas Pullen, State Superintendent of Schools.

Among others attending were the Rev. Leo J. McCormick, superintendent of Catholic Schools in the Baltimore Diocese, and John Manlich, State Representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The foundation is sponsor of the program. The vaccine was developed by Dr. Jonas Salk of the University of Pittsburgh.

Biggs, commander of the Citadel; John Ankeney, treasurer; Col. V. J. Huffman, Baltimore, divisional commander, who installed the officers; Daniel Y. Salvation Army Board Officers Are Installed

Life Membership Is Presented To Ort

Officers of the Salvation Army Advisory Board were installed last night by Lt. Col. V. J. Huffman, Baltimore, divisional commander, during the annual meeting held in Central YMCA.

They are Daniel Y. Browne, president; William Wendt, vice president; John Ankeney, treasurer, and Carl Amtower, secretary.

Ort Is Honored

Lewis J. Ort was presented a life membership in the board by Col. Huffman in appreciation of his service to the Salvation Army in Cumberland.

In presenting the certificate, Col. Huffman cited Ort's efforts in 1952 in the financial drive which retired the mortgage at the Citadel and raised $5,000 for a building program at the South Cumberland Corps.

Ort was also recognized for setting up the present rotating system to provide continuity to the Advisory Board.

Appointments Set

He said the Army will always continue to strive to bring new security and faith to the needy. The Army, he said, has been termed the Church of the Three D's — the dispossessed, disillusioned and the disheartened.

Capt. Biggs presented the financial and activity reports from the Citadel and the South Cumberland Corps.

"The Salvation Army," he said, "has served this community for 70 years" and with the help of the Advisory Board will continue to carry forward its program in Cumberland.

Col. Huffman announced plans are being made to assign an outstanding married couple to take charge of the Salvation Army Corps before the end of March.

Temperature Drops Here

Temperatures dropped throughout the area and Cumberland experienced its coldest day this month following Sunday's snow storms in the outlying districts.

Snow flurries in Garrett County continued until late afternoon yesterday and visibility along the highways west of Frostburg was poor. Snowfall stopped sometime in the morning as the temperatures dipped to 12 above in Oakland and on Big Savage Mountain. There was a two-inch snowfall from Frostburg west to Grantsville and about three inches in Accident.

However, State Police reported roadways were clear and drying last night and the State Roads Commission said all highways were in good condition as the flurries stopped and visibility became clearer in the evening.

In West Virginia, state police said no new snow was reported yesterday following about five inches which fell in the mountains near Romney. State road crews had highways well cindered and travel was not hazardous. The mercury was down to about 26 degrees in Romney yesterday afternoon.

Ice had cleared off the Pennsylvania Turnpike by yesterday afternoon although temperatures hovered near 20 degrees throughout the day. Highways were clear following early morning snow flurries which stopped later in the afternoon.

Westward from Allegheny Front there was two to five inches of snow reported Sunday night.

In Cumberland the mercury dropped to 22 degrees during the day. The high was recorded at 29 and humidity at 6 o'clock was about 78 per cent.

Forecast for today is continued cold and fair.

Maplehurst Club To Hold Meeting

The final public membership meeting of the Maplehurst Country Club, Inc., will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the Frostburg Fire Hall.

Officers of the club, which plans to build a golf course on its grounds, have reached their goal of 200 charter members and have raised the $40,000 necessary to begin work on the new recreation area.

Tomorrow night's meeting will be the last open to the public and all persons desiring to buy stock and become charter members are urged to attend. The charter membership will be closed following the meeting.

Plans call for a stockholders meeting to be held in the near future at which time permanent officers for the club will be elected along with a board of directors. Following the election of officers and acceptance of the by-laws the membership in the club will again be opened to the public.

A Maplehurst sponsored dance was held Friday night at the Clary Club at which time $250 was raised for club expenses. Approximately 200 couples attended the affair.

Garrett County Boy Is Killed Along Highway

No Charge Likely, State Police Say

State Police indicated last night there would be no charge filed against the driver of the car which struck and killed a 10-year-old Garrett County boy yesterday morning.

Trooper Donald R. Wade investigated the mishap which was fatal to Ronald McKenzie, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie who live on a farm about a mile off U. S. Route 40, seven miles west of Frostburg.

The driver of the car was William Nicholas Karcher, 20, of Baltimore, who said he swerved his machine to the left in an effort to avoid striking the boy when the latter darted out onto the highway in front of him. The car's right fender hit the youngster and hurled him to the ground.

Trooper Wade said the mishap occurred near the Zion Church and that swirling snow made visibility very poor. The highway was icy at the time.

Witnesses said the boy, along with his twin brother Donald, and several other children were awaiting the school bus along the highway. Donald apparently waited for a truck to pass, then ran out onto the road, they said.

State Police said the Grantsville Elementary School pupil suffered a fractured skull and compound fracture of the right leg. His mother was taken to Miners Hospital in Frostburg suffering from shock after being told of the death of her son.

Besides his parents and twin brother, young Ronald is survived by two other brothers, Karl McKenzie, with the U. S. Army, and Lawrence Jr., at home; and two sisters, Leona and Maxine McKenzie, both also at home.

He is survived also by his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie, Big Savage. His mother was the former Miss Hazel Gomer.

The body will remain at the Hafer Funeral Home in Frostburg.

Tired Burglar Gets Six Months "Rest" In Jail

Kenneth E. Hillagas, 54, of RFD 3, Bedford Road, yesterday was sentenced to serve out the rest of a six-month sentence in the Bedford County (Pa.) Jail after he told the judge in Bedford County Circuit Court that he was tired because he had had such a good time in jail awaiting trial.

Hillagas had pleaded guilty before Judge Richard Snyder to burglary in the theft of $18 from a farmhouse.

When he slouched before the judge, the jurist asked the Bedford Road man if he were tired.

"Yes, I am," Hillagas answered. "I had too good a time in the Bedford County Jail the past 20 days."

After that response, Judge Snyder gave him six months to "rest" in the jail there.

TV Company Outlines New Program Plan

Cable 6 Reserved For Local Telecasts

Plans for providing programs offered by four major television networks without duplication over Potomac Valley Television Company cables were outlined yesterday to Mayor Roy W. Eves by J. Holland Rannells, president.

Rannells also announced, following a conversation with Baltimore officials of the Federal Communications Commission, that Channel 6 on the cable will be reserved for local telecasting.

Beginning Saturday morning, the cable firm will provide ABC programs over Cable 3 from Station WMAL, Washington.

CBS programs will be provided over Cable channel 2 from WTOP in Washington.

DuMont programs will be carried over cable channel 5 from WTTG, Washington.

NBC programs will be received on Cable channel 4, coming from WRC, Washington.

Rannells said local telecasts will be discontinued, except in emergencies, until necessary alterations are made to carry them over Cable Channel 6. He said the work of providing the proper amplifications will take from two to four weeks.

He said the FCC has agreed to the change in the use of Cable Channel 6.

The channel, he added, uses a higher frequency and must be amplified to a higher level than other channels being used.

Rannells told FCC officials he planned to use Channel 6 only for short periods in the evenings, and at very low and well controlled power levels.

He said that if No. 6 does cause any interference with sets getting signals over antennas, it can be easily checked.

School Building Program Backed By Delegation

Enabling Act Will Be Introduced Today

The Allegany County Delegation last night was preparing for introduction in the General Assembly today a bill providing for an $800,000 school building and improvement program, according to Del. Charles M. See, chairman.

He said the bill will request legislation enabling the Board of Education and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to finance the program upon which both have agreed.

The largest single project in the program is a new eight to 10 room elementary school, estimated to cost about $410,000, which is needed in the Bowman's Addition area. The rest of the funds would be used to augment projects undertaken during the past three years.

Plan Resolution

Also slated to be introduced as a Delegation measure today is a resolution calling for the Board of Education to begin experimental plans for the training of the physically handicapped children of this county.

Del. See said the resolution will also ask the Board of Education to request the County Commissioners to include in their next budget sufficient funds to employ several teachers to get the work started.

He said the delegates realize the program will have to be started in a small way.

Introduced last Friday by Delegates Lester B. Reed, Estel C. Kelley and See was House Bill 459.

It provides that if the State Roads Commission limits ingress or egress to business firms located on a highway, it must compensate owners for damages.

Right To Appeal

Property owners would have the right to appeal SRC decisions on damages to the circuit court in which the firm is located, and to have a jury trial on the issue.

Sponsors of the bill said restrictions set by the SRC can be met by those establishing new businesses, but that limiting the entrances and exits of existing firms can work a hardship on the firm.

The legislation was suggested by the Route 40 Association as a result of SRC action some time ago in placing posts along the Baltimore Pike to limit entrances and exits of a service station.

The delegates said the SRC under protest removed the posts but that property owners want legislation covering the situation.

Manslaughter Plea Entered By Shipe Woman

Ohio Judge Defers Passing Sentence

ELYRIA, Ohio, March 7 (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Shipe, 22, today pleaded guilty to first degree manslaughter in the death of her baby. Common Pleas Judge D. A. Cook delayed sentence pending a probation report.

Mrs. Shipe was indicted last week in the death of her illegitimate child, born Dec. 19, 1953 in nearby Lorain. Police said Mrs. Shipe admitted she suffocated the infant to suppress its cries after she gave birth, unassisted, in a rooming house. She told them the child was illegitimate.

She put the child's body in a suitcase, where it remained for over a year.

Mrs. Shipe married and moved to Cumberland, Md., with her husband, leaving the suitcase behind. The body was discovered by a relative who had been asked by Mrs. Shipe to forward some things to her.

The relative reported the discovery to police, who ordered Mrs. Shipe's arrest last January.

Travel Council Urges Route 40 Improvements

Senator Kimble Suggests Solution

ANNAPOLIS, March 7 (AP)—The Maryland Travel Council began a campaign today to speed up improvement of U.S. 40 between Cumberland and Hancock, which it said is costing the state millions of tourist dollars.

Letters from J. L. Towler with the council's authority were being circulated through the General Assembly asking backing for any bills the Allegany delegation might introduce pertaining to immediate improvement of the 28 miles of highway.

It said the U.S. 40 Assn. has asked the Allegany County delegation to take steps "to revise our present 12-year-plan, whereby we would get a new relocated road" on the stretch within the next four years.

The present plans it said calls for remodeling a part of the road and putting a third lane on the hazardous curves.

"Even if this betters the condition, the completion of it would take 12 years," the letter from the tourist promotion group said.

It said most people who come from the west would enter Maryland on Route 40 if the road were comparable to the competitive Pennsylvania Turnpike or U. S. 50 going through West Virginia and Virginia.

"At the present time 90 per cent of traffic is diverted to either the turnpike or U.S. 50," it said.

This short span is diverting traffic that would provide millions of dollars in gasoline tax alone, the letter said.

It also said millions would be spent in "our business places, and there again, the monies from the sales tax would also increase."

The Allegany delegates who were available for comment said no such legislation has been prepared.

Sen. Kimble (R-Allegany), minority floor leader, said a report is expected from the State Roads Commission within a week on a recommendation to shift funds in the county so the highway stretch could be taken care of immediately.

The way this would be done would be to delay other roads projects in Allegany which have been scheduled for the next few years and use the county's allotment for U.S. 40.

"I don't think there will be any need for legislation," Kimble said.

School Officials Briefed On Plan For Polio Shots

Go Ahead Contingent On Vaccine Approval

BALTIMORE, March 7 (AP) — If the Salk polio vaccine is given to Maryland youngsters this spring only doctors will give the shots, school and health officials were informed today.

About 60 county health officers and school superintendents met in Baltimore to hear plans for the immunization project.

If the final go-ahead is given, 150,000 first and second graders will get the shots. They're free but parents will have to make written requests.

About 400,000 youngsters across the nation already have been given the shots. Whether Maryland children get them depends on an evaluation of the limited nationwide test. Results should be known about April 1.

If success is indicated, the vaccine would then be approved by the National Institutes of Health and only then would this year's larger program be inaugurated. But the planning must be started now, Dr. Edward Davens of the Maryland Health Department noted. He is chief of the department's bureau of preventive medicine.

Today's meeting was jointly directed by Dr. Robert H. Riley, State Director of Health, and Dr. Thomas Pullen, State Superintendent of Schools.

Among others attending were the Rev. Leo J. McCormick, superintendent of Catholic Schools in the Baltimore Diocese, and John Manlich, State Representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The foundation is sponsor of the program. The vaccine was developed by Dr. Jonas Salk of the University of Pittsburgh.

Salvation Army Board Officers Are Installed

Life Membership Is Presented To Ort

Officers of the Salvation Army Advisory Board were installed last night by Lt. Col. V. J. Huffman, Baltimore, divisional commander, during the annual meeting held in Central YMCA.

They are Daniel Y. Browne, president; William Wendt, vice president; John Ankeney, treasurer, and Carl Amtower, secretary.

Ort Is Honored

Lewis J. Ort was presented a life membership in the board by Col. Huffman in appreciation of his service to the Salvation Army in Cumberland.

In presenting the certificate, Col. Huffman cited Ort's efforts in 1952 in the financial drive which retired the mortgage at the Citadel and raised $5,000 for a building program at the South Cumberland Corps.

Ort was also recognized for setting up the present rotating system to provide continuity to the Advisory Board.

Appointments Set

He said the Army will always continue to strive to bring new security and faith to the needy. The Army, he said, has been termed the Church of the Three D's — the dispossessed, disillusioned and the disheartened.

Capt. Biggs presented the financial and activity reports from the Citadel and the South Cumberland Corps.

"The Salvation Army," he said, "has served this community for 70 years" and with the help of the Advisory Board will continue to carry forward its program in Cumberland.

Col. Huffman announced plans are being made to assign an outstanding married couple to take charge of the Salvation Army Corps before the end of March.

Temperature Drops Here

Temperatures dropped throughout the area and Cumberland experienced its coldest day this month following Sunday's snow storms in the outlying districts.

Snow flurries in Garrett County continued until late afternoon yesterday and visibility along the highways west of Frostburg was poor. Snowfall stopped sometime in the morning as the temperatures dipped to 12 above in Oakland and on Big Savage Mountain. There was a two-inch snowfall from Frostburg west to Grantsville and about three inches in Accident.

However, State Police reported roadways were clear and drying last night and the State Roads Commission said all highways were in good condition as the flurries stopped and visibility became clearer in the evening.

In West Virginia, state police said no new snow was reported yesterday following about five inches which fell in the mountains near Romney. State road crews had highways well cindered and travel was not hazardous. The mercury was down to about 26 degrees in Romney yesterday afternoon.

Ice had cleared off the Pennsylvania Turnpike by yesterday afternoon although temperatures hovered near 20 degrees throughout the day. Highways were clear following early morning snow flurries which stopped later in the afternoon.

Westward from Allegheny Front there was two to five inches of snow reported Sunday night.

In Cumberland the mercury dropped to 22 degrees during the day. The high was recorded at 29 and humidity at 6 o'clock was about 78 per cent.

Forecast for today is continued cold and fair.

The final public membership meeting of the Maplehurst Country Club, Inc., will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the Frostburg Fire Hall.

Officers of the club, which plans to build a golf course on its grounds, have reached their goal of 200 charter members and have raised the $40,000 necessary to begin work on the new recreation area.

Tomorrow night's meeting will be the last open to the public and all persons desiring to buy stock and become charter members are urged to attend. The charter membership will be closed following the meeting.

Plans call for a stockholders meeting to be held in the near future at which time permanent officers for the club will be elected along with a board of directors. Following the election of officers and acceptance of the by-laws the membership in the club will again be opened to the public.

A Maplehurst sponsored dance was held Friday night at the Clary Club at which time $250 was raised for club expenses. Approximately 200 couples attended the affair.

Garrett County Boy Is Killed Along Highway

No Charge Likely, State Police Say

State Police indicated last night there would be no charge filed against the driver of the car which struck and killed a 10-year-old Garrett County boy yesterday morning.

Trooper Donald R. Wade investigated the mishap which was fatal to Ronald McKenzie, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKenzie who live on a farm about a mile off U. S. Route 40, seven miles west of Frostburg.

The driver of the car was William Nicholas Karcher, 20, of Baltimore, who said he swerved his machine to the left in an effort to avoid striking the boy when the latter darted out onto the highway in front of him. The car's right fender hit the youngster and hurled him to the ground.

Trooper Wade said the mishap occurred near the Zion Church and that swirling snow made visibility very poor. The highway was icy at the time.

Witnesses said the boy, along with his twin brother Donald, and several other children were awaiting the school bus along the highway. Donald apparently waited for a truck to pass, then ran out onto the road, they said.

State Police said the Grantsville Elementary School pupil suffered a fractured skull and compound fracture of the right leg. His mother was taken to Miners Hospital in Frostburg suffering from shock after being told of the death of her son.

Besides his parents and twin brother, young Ronald is survived by two other brothers, Karl McKenzie, with the U. S. Army, and Lawrence Jr., at home; and two sisters, Leona and Maxine McKenzie, both also at home.

He is survived also by his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie, Big Savage. His mother was the former Miss Hazel Gomer.

The body will remain at the Hafer Funeral Home in Frostburg.

Tired Burglar Gets Six Months "Rest" In Jail

Kenneth E. Hillagas, 54, of RFD 3, Bedford Road, yesterday was sentenced to serve out the rest of a six-month sentence in the Bedford County (Pa.) Jail after he told the judge in Bedford County Circuit Court that he was tired because he had had such a good time in jail awaiting trial.

Hillagas had pleaded guilty before Judge Richard Snyder to burglary in the theft of $18 from a farmhouse.

When he slouched before the judge, the jurist asked the Bedford Road man if he were tired.

"Yes, I am," Hillagas answered. "I had too good a time in the Bedford County Jail the past 20 days."

After that response, Judge Snyder gave him six months to "rest" in the jail there.

TV Company Outlines New Program Plan

Cable 6 Reserved For Local Telecasts

Plans for providing programs offered by four major television networks without duplication over Potomac Valley Television Company cables were outlined yesterday to Mayor Roy W. Eves by J. Holland Rannells, president.

Rannells also announced, following a conversation with Baltimore officials of the Federal Communications Commission, that Channel 6 on the cable will be reserved for local telecasting.

Beginning Saturday morning, the cable firm will provide ABC programs over Cable 3 from Station WMAL, Washington.

CBS programs will be provided over Cable channel 2 from WTOP in Washington.

DuMont programs will be carried over cable channel 5 from WTTG, Washington.

NBC programs will be received on Cable channel 4, coming from WRC, Washington.

Rannells said local telecasts will be discontinued, except in emergencies, until necessary alterations are made to carry them over Cable Channel 6. He said the work of providing the proper amplifications will take from two to four weeks.

He said the FCC has agreed to the change in the use of Cable Channel 6.

The channel, he added, uses a higher frequency and must be amplified to a higher level than other channels being used.

Rannells told FCC officials he planned to use Channel 6 only for short periods in the evenings, and at very low and well controlled power levels.

He said that if No. 6 does cause any interference with sets getting signals over antennas, it can be easily checked.

School Building Program Backed By Delegation

Enabling Act Will Be Introduced Today

The Allegany County Delegation last night was preparing for introduction in the General Assembly today a bill providing for an $800,000 school building and improvement program, according to Del. Charles M. See, chairman.

He said the bill will request legislation enabling the Board of Education and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to finance the program upon which both have agreed.

The largest single project in the program is a new eight to 10 room elementary school, estimated to cost about $410,000, which is needed in the Bowman's Addition area. The rest of the funds would be used to augment projects undertaken during the past three years.

Plan Resolution

Also slated to be introduced as a Delegation measure today is a resolution calling for the Board of Education to begin experimental plans for the training of the physically handicapped children of this county.

Del. See said the resolution will also ask the Board of Education to request the County Commissioners to include in their next budget sufficient funds to employ several teachers to get the work started.

He said the delegates realize the program will have to be started in a small way.

Introduced last Friday by Delegates Lester B. Reed, Estel C. Kelley and See was House Bill 459.

It provides that if the State Roads Commission limits ingress or egress to business firms located on a highway, it must compensate owners for damages.

Right To Appeal

Property owners would have the right to appeal SRC decisions on damages to the circuit court in which the firm is located, and to have a jury trial on the issue.

Sponsors of the bill said restrictions set by the SRC can be met by those establishing new businesses, but that limiting the entrances and exits of existing firms can work a hardship on the firm.

The legislation was suggested by the Route 40 Association as a result of SRC action some time ago in placing posts along the Baltimore Pike to limit entrances and exits of a service station.

The delegates said the SRC under protest removed the posts but that property owners want legislation covering the situation.
